Provisional Government Evacuates Gatchina in Face of Korniloff's Advance

KORNILLOFF TAKES TOWN EVACUATED BY KERENSKY ARMY

Constitutional Democrats Support Provisional Government to Save Russia From Civil War

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.—Gatchina, thirty miles south-southwest of Petrograd, has been occupied by the forces of General Korniloff after it had been evacuated by government troops. General Savinkoff, commander of the troops defending Petrograd, told The Associated Press today. Another Korniloff force is thirty-four miles south of Petrograd in the direction of Tsarskoe-Selo.

General Korniloff, commander of the Korniloff troops, is at Luga, ninety miles southwest of Petrograd. No fighting has occurred so far.

While optimism seems to prevail in the provisional government in Russia that a successful issue of the counter-revolution started by General Korniloff soon will be returned in favor of Premier Kerensky, the situation still remains most acute. All the dispatches from Petrograd at present are emanating from the provisional government or supporters of Kerensky.

Late reports from Petrograd are to the effect that Korniloff's march on Petrograd has been checked and that even his retreat has been cut off by forces faithful to the provisional government; also that there have been further defections from the ranks of Korniloff and that a great majority of the commanders at the front are still adhering to the government.

Meanwhile the spirit of unrest seems to have invaded Moscow, where martial law has been declared and government forces are maintaining order.

One of the brightest spots in the situation is the offer to the central committee of the constitutional democratic party to aid in the constitution of the cabinet, so as to avoid civil war.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11. (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press).—The following statement, which was signed "Kerensky, prime minister and commander-in-chief," was given out here today:

"To the armed forces of Russia. I declare my complete faith in all ranks of the army and the fleet in the generals, admirals, officers, soldiers and sailors who have borne the heavy burden of the past days. I prefer to die on the field of honor and battle rather than to witness the shame and infamy of Russian land and sea forces. I prefer to die on the field of honor and battle rather than to witness the shame and infamy of Russian land and sea forces. I prefer to die on the field of honor and battle rather than to witness the shame and infamy of Russian land and sea forces."

"It is time to cease playing with the country's fate. Let all Russians who strive to save the revolution and thus achieve freedom and the renewal of the common order of government, to understand and become imbued with the conviction that in this moment all our ideas and strength should be directed, first of all toward the defense of the fatherland from the external enemy who is aiming to subjugate it."

Korniloff's Proclamation. PETROGRAD, Tuesday, Sept. 11, 11 a.m.—The text of General Korniloff's proclamation as published here today. The first, dated at Mohilov, denounces Premier Kerensky's description of Vladimir Lovoff's mission as untrue and declares that Korniloff did not send Lovoff to Kerensky, but that Kerensky first sent Lovoff to him with the order to create trouble.

"Russian men," continues the proclamation, "our great fatherland is perishing. The government, under pressure of the Bolshevik majority of the council, is acting in full accord with the plans of the German general staff. Overwhelming consciousness of the impending ruin of the fatherland compels me in this menacing moment to summon all Russian men to save perishing Russia. All in whose breasts beat Russian hearts, all who believe in God, let them flock to the temple and pray God to perform a great miracle—a miracle of saving the fatherland."

"I, General Korniloff, son of a peasant and Cossack, declare to all that I require nothing personally, nothing except the salvation of my fatherland."

UNION CARPENTERS LEAVE MORE JOBS. Boycott of Ten-hour-day Lumber Enforced at Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 12.—Union carpenters today were taken off nearly twenty jobs on which lumber made in ten-hour mills was being used. The strikes were ordered by the district council of carpenters, which includes seven carpenters' unions, to enforce the ultimatum of the Shipwrights and Joiners' local union, which as a condition of joining the carpenters' district council, was that the strike would be extended to the Seattle shipyards before night was the official statement made to the public.

That the strike will probably extend to the Seattle shipyards before night was the official statement made to the public. That the strike will probably extend to the Seattle shipyards before night was the official statement made to the public.

TWO THOUSAND IN KANSAS CITY RIOT. One Man Fatally Hurt in Packing House Trouble

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 12.—A riot in which it is estimated that more than 2,000 striking packing house employees and their sympathizers participated, took place tonight at Armour and Company's plant in Kansas City, Kansas, with the result that one man was fatally injured and two others were injured.

All sections in the packing house district, fifty-three in number, were closed by the police who finally succeeded in restoring order. The trouble was the first of a serious nature to break out in connection with the packing house strike, which has been in progress almost a week, resulting in the idleness of several thousand men.

Tonight's disorder is said to have occurred when the crowd of striking sympathizers assembled before the Armour plant and began "milling" as six hundred or more employees who had not joined the strike came out of the gates. While the "milling" was at its height, someone threw a brick which struck Ora Wood, a switchman, fracturing his skull. Bricks were then thrown freely.

TEVIS SUES KERN COUNTY LAND CO. FOR SETTLEMENT

(Special to The Republican.) SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Claiming a balance due after withdrawing from the affairs of the Kern County Land company, Williams Tevis today filed suit against the concern for $342,218, alleging that during the six years that he was president of the company the volume of transactions left the company his debtor to that amount. Tevis withdrew as president a year ago. The company and himself attempted to balance accounts, but the item involved in the suit was not adjusted.

KERENSKY AND ALEXEIEFF REACH ARMY SCHEME

LONDON, Sept. 12.—According to the Reuters Petrograd correspondent, an understanding has been reached for the co-operation of Kerensky as provisional commander-in-chief, and General Alexeieff, chief of the general staff.

MOBILIZATION OF 40 PER CENT ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Mobilization of the 40 per cent quota of the national army will proceed September 13, according to schedule, all over the United States. The War department announced today, except for some of the districts where there are no troops assigned to come. The districts are: N. J., Camp Mead, Maryland, and Camp Union, Yaphank, Long Island.

Delay in construction at these camps together with the lack of eastern railroads to transport large numbers of recruits, under a rearranged schedule, caused the provost marshal general's office to establish the new program.

SELECTS JURY TO TRY O'CONNELL

Judge Van Fleet Defines Right of Free Speech

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Judge William C. Van Fleet of the United States district court, instructing prospective jurors today in the case of Daniel O'Connell, attorney, and six other men charged with conspiring to hamper the enforcement of the selection of the draft law, that the right of free speech guaranteed by the constitution.

Citizens are perfectly free to express their views on all public questions, he said, so long as they are actuated by an honest purpose and not for the purpose of obstructing the execution of the laws of the country.

"No man has a right to advise his neighbor, or the public, to obstruct the execution of the law. That is beyond the liberty of free speech," he said.

Herman G. Smith, his brother, David B. Smith, Thomas Carey, Carl E. P. Wachter, R. H. Hoffman and Rev. William C. Mengendorff are being tried jointly with O'Connell.

The jury was selected today. United States District Attorney John W. Presler, in his opening statement to the jury, said it would be proved that O'Connell was the president of an organization printing a newspaper which disseminated alleged German propaganda, and which was backed by German money. He also said the charges against Rev. Mengendorff may be dismissed and the clergyman has been named as a government witness.

TO IMPROVE HIGHWAY. CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Sept. 12.—Linn county, which has been known as the main trunk of the Lincoln highway and avoided by cross-country tourists, has adopted a program for the betterment of the highways by the expenditure of $250,000. The work will be done within the next two years.

HAVANA, Sept. 12.—President Monciu today by special decree removed the war revenue tax recently imposed by an act of congress on exports of copper and iron from Cuba.

"LIBERTY MOTOR" FULLY MEETS ALL ITS TESTS

Airplane Engine Result of Cooperation of U. S. Scientists

VERY PRACTICAL Factories in Many States Working on Parts for European Campaign

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Liberty Motor, the airplane engine upon which the United States is relying to establish definite air supremacy over the Germans over the battlefields of France, has passed its final test and is a complete and gratifying success. Secretary Baker announced today.

Secretary Baker's statement follows: "The United States Aviator Engine" has passed its final tests. They were successful and gratifying. The "new motor," designed by the signal service, as the "Liberty motor," is now the main reliance of the United States in the rapid production in large numbers of high powered battleplanes for service in the war. In power, speed, serviceability, and minimum weight, this new engine invites comparison with the best that the European war has produced.

"I regard the invention and rapid development of this engine as one of the really big accomplishments by the United States since its entry into the war. The engine was brought about through the cooperation of more than a score of engineers who pooled their skill and trade secrets in the war emergency, working with the encouragement of the aircraft production board, the war department and the bureau of standards."

"The story of the production of this engine is a remarkable one. Probably the war has produced no greater single achievement."

"One of the first problems was to produce quickly a dependable aviation engine. Two developments were necessary: one was to encourage manufacturers to develop their own types; the other to bring the best of all types together and develop a standard. The latter course was chosen and two of the best engineers in the country were brought together at Washington to coordinate the production of an all-American engine at the earliest possible moment. Their first conference was on June 3."

"These two engineers were figuratively locked in a room in a Washington hotel for five days, neither left the suite of rooms. Consulting engineers and draftsmen from various sections of the country were brought to Washington to assist them. The work in the drafting room proceeded continuously day and night. Each of the two engineers in immediate charge of the development were alternately worked at twenty-four hour shifts."

"An inspiring feature of this work was the aid rendered by consulting engineers and motor manufacturers who gave up their trade secrets under the emergency of war needs. Inquiries have also been distributed to the services of approximately two hundred of their best draftsmen."

MARKED DECREASE IN SHIPPING LOSS

Only Eighteen British Vessels Sunk During Past Week

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A marked decrease in the destruction of British merchant vessels by mines or submarines is indicated in the weekly admiralty statement issued this evening. Twelve vessels of more than 1,000 tons and six of less than 1,000 tons were sent to the bottom, as compared with twenty in the large and three in the small category sunk the previous week. Tonight's statement shows that four fishing vessels also were lost.

The summary: Arrivals 7,744; sailings, 2,656. British merchant vessels sunk by mine or submarine of over 1,000 tons, including one previously, 12; under 1,000 tons, including one previously, 6. British merchant vessels attacked unsuccessfully, including three previously, 12.

British fishing vessels sunk, 4. The above admiralty statement shows the smallest number of large British vessels sunk by mines or submarines since Germany last February began her intensified submarine campaign. The previous low record was for the week of March 11, when thirteen vessels of more than 1,000 tons were sent to the bottom.

Three fishing craft also were sent to the bottom. Unsuccessful attacks were made by hostile craft on three vessels.

ARGENTINA WILLING TO ACCEPT GERMAN AMEND FOR INSULT

Demands Restatement of Ship Immunity and Apology For "Notorious Ass" Dispatch

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 12.—The downtown section of the city was the scene of the wildest disorders tonight in connection with great anti-German demonstrations in which thousands of Argentinians took part. Many of those in the mobs carried firebrands, and as a result scores of buildings were set on fire. Several blocks of German business houses in Calle 25 de Mayo were destroyed.

Among the structures attacked were the German club, one of the finest edifices in the city, and the building of the German daily, La Union. As fast as the fires in these buildings were extinguished they were started again. Mounted patrols and the entire fire department kept rushing from one part of the city to another in an attempt to quell the riots and put down the flames. In several instances police who were attempting to shoot at those wielding torches were set upon by crowds and disarmed.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the authorities to protect Count Luxburg, the German minister, when he arrives here tomorrow morning to receive his passports.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 12.—The Argentine government at noon today sent to the German legation passports to be delivered to Count Luxburg, the German minister, in Buenos Aires. The whereabouts of Count Luxburg still is unknown to the Argentine government. The Argentine foreign office also sent a communication to the German foreign ministry demanding an explanation of Count Luxburg's action in sending the secret code messages to Berlin through the Swedish legation.

It was officially announced here today that if Germany failed to disprove Count Von Luxburg's action, Argentina would recall her minister at Berlin. If Berlin does not disprove approved of his course, the status quo would be maintained.

Willing To See Solution. The Argentine minister at Berlin has been instructed to inform the German foreign office that Count Von Luxburg has been handed his passports and to ask for explanations regarding the telegram disclosures.

Germany disapproves of the text of the German minister's dispatches and especially of the word "ass," which term the count applied to the Argentine foreign minister, the situation may be cleared up. If Berlin does not disprove approved of his course, Argentina will recall her minister from Germany, but may permit the legation to remain.

If Germany expresses a desire to maintain relations with Argentina, notwithstanding the expulsion of Count Von Luxburg, the Argentine foreign office said this government would be willing to consider the question.

Argentina also has asked the German government for a full explanation of its present policy of sinking Argentine ships. This apparently was settled in the case of the steamship Toro, but in the case of Count Von Luxburg's notes, which antedated that settlement, Argentina desires a clear statement.

A rupture, the officials say, is not necessary if Germany is inclined to make concessions, but if she does not do so, it is certain that there will be a break in diplomatic relations.

British Surprised

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The statement from the Swedish foreign office that the Swedish authorities had ceased sending German messages applied only to North America, caused a great surprise here, where the facts have been well known for a long time among diplomats and others.

When the British government took an interest in the matter, Sweden in 1915, assurances were given by the Swedish foreign office to the British minister at Stockholm and by the Swedish minister in London. It is declared that the use of Swedish diplomatic facilities for the transmission of German messages was discontinued.

AMERICAN BANKERS EAT "WAR" BREAD

Rudolph Hecht of New Orleans Elected President

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Financial, physical and spiritual support was pledged to the government in the war crisis in resolutions adopted at the fifteenth annual meeting of the American Institute of Banking here today. The war spirit not only pervaded the business sessions of the institute, but the dinner in the evening—a "hooray dinner," the bankers called it. Beefsteak, corn on the cob and war bread, baked potatoes, radishes and combination salad formed the principal articles on the bill of fare.

Speakers at the dinner were E. D. Hubert of the Institute and the War; Colonel James A. Ryan, commander at Fort Sheridan, on "Military Preparedness," and John J. Arnold on "American Internationalism." The officers elected are:

President—Rudolph Hecht, New Orleans. Vice president—J. C. Thompson, Minneapolis. Directors—C. A. Rathbone, Boston; W. A. Roger, Richmond, Va.; J. H. Seaborg, New York; F. J. Maurice, Detroit.

STRIKER FATALITY SHOT DURING ATTACK ON CAR

Mobs Use Bricks and Stones and Beat Up Crews

GENERAL STRIKE? Labor Council Plans Evasion of Federation's War Rule

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—A rioting "wave of violence" in which a striking carman was probably fatally shot and several other men were severely injured late today broke forty-eight hours of comparative quiet that had attended the strike of a majority of the platform employees of the United Railroads here.

John Murphy, who, hospital physicians said, will die, was shot in a riot in the downtown industrial district when strike sympathizers attacked a car. One man was arrested. A substitute carman was struck over the head with an iron bar and severely injured.

One substitute carman was shot in the leg in an argument over money matters in one of the company's car barns, according to the police, who arrested a United Railroad guard on a charge of assault to murder.

Several cars were bombarded with bricks and stones, and the substitute crews were hit by the mobs. The United Railroads Corporation was fined to appear in court on charges of violating the new state housing act, which forbids the quartering of more than twenty men in one room.

It became known tonight that the executive board of the San Francisco Labor council has discussed the proposal for a general sympathetic strike of all workers in the city only as a final measure to bring victory to the striking carmen.

Laborers would resign their positions, it was said, and thus circumvent the ban of the Federation of Labor rule against sympathetic walkouts.

No further efforts to obtain arbitration of the men's demands, which include a $3.50 wage for an eight hour day and recognition of their union, were made.

Strike leaders announced that the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America would, if necessary, levy assessments on every carman's union in the United States to finance the San Francisco strike. Word to this effect, they said, had been received from the President, R. L. where delegates were gathering for the annual convention of the organization.

BOND ISSUE PUT UP TO THE SENATE

Finance Committee Favors McAdoo Credits Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Unanimous approval of the huge war credits bill passed last week by the House was voted late today by the Senate finance committee, after it had added several minor amendments. The committee acted after but two days' consideration of the measure.

Tomorrow the measure will be presented to the Senate to lie over until Friday. It is expected to pass with little discussion, not later than Saturday.

Instances of 1,500,000,000 worth of certificates for floating the securities to income tax and of $2,000,000,000 each of certificates of indebtedness and war savings certificates are authorized by the bill.

Or for further loans to the Allies, $3,000,000,000 to supply the 3½ per cent Liberty bonds recently authorized for such loans, and the remaining $558,945,486 for conversion of miscellaneous outstanding bonds, including Danish West Indian, Alaskan Railroad, Panama canal and naval construction bonds.

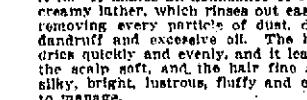

Probably the most important changes of the finance committee were in the allowances for floating the securities. The House expense allowance of one-seventh of one per cent of the bonds and war savings certificates was increased to one-fourth of one per cent, and the House allowance of one-tenth of one per cent for the indebtedness certificates was cut in half.

The committee retained substantially the House provisions for interest on the new bonds not in excess of 4 per cent—the rate, it is understood, at which Secretary McAdoo plans the bankruptcy here yesterday, giving liabilities as $123,380. The company's assets are not known.

Sheep Men Slightly Better Off Because of Wool

As regards this state, New South Wales, there is usually a heavy increase in the supplies of live stock sent to Sydney, about October and November when the sheep-shearing season is over and cattle men are preparing to reduce their herds and flocks. If this course is followed this year, a reduction in values is inevitable. On the other hand, present prospects are that the coming summer

HOME COOK BOOK TO BE PUBLISHED BY WOMEN

Conservation Is to Be Effectively Urged in Homes

First Example Offered in Reduction of Living
Cost Commended

The Fresno Woman's Council of Defense asks all housewives in Fresno to send in at once an economical and practical recipe.

All recipes must be properly tested before sending, with definite and detailed instructions as to making and if possible the cost involved.

The object is the publication of a Home Cook Book that shall call for less of eggs, of butter and other good things that other cook books make imperative in the building of some of the table creations.

With the tender of recipes, the names and addresses of the sender are required and are to be published with the recipe.

Kindly send as soon as possible to room 223, Rowell building, Fresno.

All of which means that the Fresno County Women's Council is about to make the larger demonstration of the fact that this organization is in the field for the purpose of conserving, in fact, the food supplies of this part of the Golden State.

Effective Work.

Since organization, the Fresno Woman's Council of Defense has been doing some effective work in all parts of the county, through the efforts of the women of all sections having the official rating, there connected women drawing about them a band of workers, tireless in their activities.

Nor is this work of the women of Fresno county appreciated alone in the field of endeavor. Yesterday Mrs. H. A. Goddard, president of the Fresno Council, was in receipt of a message from Los Angeles, in which Mrs. Seward A. Simmons, secretary of the State Council of Defense of California, has this to say: Mrs. Goddard:—The committee was very glad to have your good letter of August 22d, and we very much approved of your little leaflet, and used it for a newspaper story.

You have certainly been active in your county, and it is very gratifying to the committee. Yours very truly, Mrs. Seward A. Simmons, Secretary, tary.

Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, President. This leaflet, mentioned in this communication from Mrs. Simmons is the little slip containing a plea for food conservation, printed at the instance of the Fresno council and distributed by the merchants of the county, slipping them in the envelope containing the monthly statement sent out to their patrons.

Defense Buttons Delayed.

In answer to the persistent query as to the non-arrival of the defense button, to be used in marking individual food conservers, the Los Angeles office

TO KEEP TRACK OF NEWSPRINT PAPER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—To keep a check on the news print paper situation, the Federal trade commission will institute a system of monthly and weekly reports by manufacturers and dealers to keep publishers constantly informed as to the rate of production and consumption and as to the amount of paper stock on hand.

The trade commission hopes that the system will put newspaper publishers in a position to demand fair prices and make it possible for producers to raise prices through fear of a paper shortage. The Canadian government will be asked to co-operate in the plan.

That Waste in Bread.

One who deplores, in these stress war times, the waste in bread has put in operation his or her pen with the following exhortation resulting:

"I am a slice of bread.

"I measure three inches by two-and-a-half, and my thickness is half-an-inch.

"My weight is exactly an ounce.

"I am wasted" once a day by 100,000,000 people of America.

"I am the bit left over; the slice eaten absentmindedly when really I need not be needed; I am the waste crust.

"If you collect me and my companions for a whole week, you would find that we amounted to 9,350 tons of good bread—wasted!

"Two shiploads of good bread!

"Almost as much—striking an average—as twenty German submarines could sink—even if they had good luck.

"When you throw me away or waste me, you are adding twenty submarines to the German navy."

Lesson in Conservation.

One of the first of the women of the city to come forward with a recipe that is calculated to help a little in the matter of conservation of food materials, is Mrs. John Fairweather, who has an offering of jelly and of preserves.

Just to show to the world something of all that can be done, Mrs. Fairweather took:

3 pounds of apples at 4 cents.... 12

12 pounds of figs at 3 cents.... 36

12 pounds of sugar at 9 cents.... 108

Of the sugar, 1½ pounds were used for the jelly and 1½ pounds for the preserves.

From the three pounds of apples there were six glasses of jelly and by adding the pulp of the apples to the figs, there were six quarts of preserves—the bulkiest ever, and all for $1.16.

Mrs. Fairweather, and the club women to whom the samples were submitted are of the opinion this is a conservation difficult of duplication.

In the mingling of the figs and apples, the proportions were one-third apples and two-thirds figs.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The poverty and degradation of the Polish population of Warsaw under German domination were described in a report of "A Polish Lady of Education."

People of culture and former wealth begged on the streets and were evicted from their homes. Deaths from starvation were so common that passers-by failed to be shocked. German soldiers in the city were well fed.

ENGLISH BISHOP TOURS DIOCESE

Remarkable Foot Pilgrimage
of Peterborough
Almost Mediaeval

PETERBOROUGH, Eng. — The bishop of Peterborough has taken a leaf out of the history of the Middle Ages and gone on a "three weeks' pilgrimage" among his clergy and people. He is walking from parish to parish, robed in his purple cassock and carrying a crozier staff. The parishioners of the first week's itinerary of the bishop are clustered about the rolling, richly wooded, Leicestershire country in the neighborhood of Belvoir Castle and in the Vale of Belvoir.

A correspondent of the Daily Mail who met the bishop at the boundary line of two parishes on a lonely country road, where the silence was interrupted only by the rumbling of distant thunder and the solitude of the landscape was broken only the alliteration of a shepherd and his flock, described the procession accompanying him as being truly a mediaeval spectacle.

The bishop, he says, headed the procession—a tall figure, virile and splendid; taller by fully five inches than the six-foot staff he carried which was used specially for the pilgrimage, from a 500-year-old oak at Peterborough cathedral.

On this staff the bishop intends to carve the names of the various parishes he visits, as other pedestrians carve names on their Alpine staves. With the bishop on this occasion, the vicar of the parish, the rector of the parish (Hedcliffe), and his churchwarden and parishioners.

At the parish boundary, the procession halted and the bishop made a personal farewell to every parishioner and thanked the rector for simple hospitality extended a pilgrim. Then the people stood in a circle around him, the men with their heads bowed, and the bishop prayed for the parish and its people and gave them his benediction.

About the same time the rector of Barton, in his cassock and with his churchwarden and parishioners, appeared down the dusty road to the opposite direction. Thus, will bells of the churches welcoming him and the new procession accompanying him, the bishop continue his way into the parish of Barton.

The bishop conducted the afternoon services of intercession. These services are special war services, with prayers and special reference to parishioners who are fighting or who have been in battle.

The bishop of Peterborough regards the services of his pilgrimage as friendly, helpful meetings of bishops, pastors and people in time of stress and sorrow.

The correspondent says that he has, beyond all doubt, immensely touched the imagination of the people by his wandering pilgrimage.

Negro Companies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Negro troops of the national army will be organized in separate units, as is done in the regular army, and as far as possible will be trained in the states where they are raised. The call for drafted negroes to mobilize at their camps will be postponed to allow officers at the camp to arrange for the organization of these separate units.

Both white and negro men of the selective forces will be given an opportunity to volunteer to battalions for service on the line of communication, their work being military but not combatant. These units will, however, be negro fighting regiments of the national army as there are of the regulars and the national guard.

Of the 687,000 men called for as the first increment of the national army, it is estimated that approximately 70,000 will be negroes.

THE DEVIL'S DITTY

Oh, now that the world with war is rife,
And a sorry place to dwell,
The Devil is having the time of his life
To find for the one who kindled the strife.

The hottest place in Hell!
He has hauled King Herod out of his pit
Where the flames burn red and blue;
He has bidden Calligula pack his kit,
And plucked from a gleaming stream—ing spit
Nero and Claudius, too.

He has flung from the depths of the fiery tomb
Whom he was interred—
Ezzelino, the man of doom,
And shut him up in an icy room
Along with Richard Third.

He has pulled Lord Jeffries down from his bench
In the sizzling, grizzling air;
He has tossed Duke Alva out of his trench,
And given a vigorous, rigorous wrench
To the head of Robespierre.

Aye, many more of the fiendish lot
Who worked with murderous will
He has harried from blazing grove and grove,
That he may select the choicest spot
For the coming of Kaiser Bill!

So now that the world with war is rife,
And a sorry place to dwell,
The Devil is having the time of his life
To find for the one who kindled the strife.

The hottest place in Hell!

THE WELSH RABBIT HABIT.

"Is an excellent habit,
To first catch you rabbit,
You'll find them in Wales,
So put on your tails.

The next thing to please,
Is to bust them with cheese;
But sure do not fail
To dip them in ale.

When they give up the ghost
Just fry them on toast,
When the hour is late,
Just serve on a plate.

Four o'clock is a dreadful
And then ask a blessing,
But maybe at first
It ought to be cursed.

What you cannot eat up
Just give to the pup,
It not only will fill him,
But probably will kill him.

WORK FOR TWO.

Nora had been guilty of what was considered an indiscretion, so the mistress of the house had her on the carpet.

"If such a thing occurs again, Nora," said the lady, "I shall have to get another servant."

Whereupon Nora, with a grin, responded: "I wish you would, mum; there's easily enough work for two of us."—Everybody's Magazine.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The poverty and degradation of the Polish population of Warsaw under German domination were described in a report of "A Polish Lady of Education."

People of culture and former wealth begged on the streets and were evicted from their homes. Deaths from starvation were so common that passers-by failed to be shocked. German soldiers in the city were well fed.

The new constitution provides that no priest or minister of whatever sect or cult, who are not Mexican born, may discharge the duties of a church or hold a church position in Mexico. While foreign-born priests have not been notified that they must give up their parishes and churches, they have not been notified that they must leave the country. LONDON, Sept. 12.—Dr. Vansant, the civilian governor of Belgium, has been dismissed, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam today. "The dismissal is incomprehensible," says the dispatch, "as the government had trusted him to write the history of the occupation of Belgium. He was the only German official in Belgium who ever gave any evidence of humanity in treatment of people."

ECENTRIC DRESSING.

(Copyright, 1917, by Lillian Russell.)
The girls of today are leaning dangerously near the eccentric in the selection of clothes. Colors and patterns seem to be of no other importance than to attract attention. The tiny one selects some wild color with a wider figure of enormous size, and the big one thinks to lessen the appearance of her size by ridiculous trimmings.

They seem to have lost the sense of harmony, which is so important to good taste. It would seem that the designers of fashions for sport clothes were lithoplasma, as the colors suggest anything but gentility.

To a man who has a quick eye for the picturesque (and the majority of men have a cultivation to that above all art)—or the fit and proper, these sights—and those to be seen in the modern drawing-room are more disagreeable, they are ghastly. I am saying nothing about indecency, woman has a neck like a skeleton should she expose it to the world? Why, if fate or laziness or overfeeding has made her grow stouter than it is permitted to be, must she squeeze herself into the tightest of costumes because it is the fashion?

Why should a girl bare her back to the multitude and wear mere straps to hold her gown on her shoulders—without caring or without knowing whether all that nakedness is pleasing to see?

Why does a woman wear trimmings of O's and X's and Y's and Z's on her skirt so that at a little distance the first thing about her that strikes the eye is the trimming? Why, if very tall, will she select the littlest, mean and make herself attention to her lack of color by wearing red or arctic green?

Why with red hair will she always wear pink? Why, when dressed in a very pale dress, will she lean against a white wall or sit in a white chair?

Why with black hair, does she affect jet flowers, combs and impossible thick plaits (ill her head looks as overburdened as a Durbar elephant)?

Why will she trust to the very moderate gifts nature has endowed her with to fight against the most abnormal disadvantages?

ENLISTS IN NAVY
Bruce A. Jones of Fresno was accepted for enlistment in the navy at the navy recruiting office in the federal building yesterday.

Why will the honey ankle and the fat-legged women wear skirts (luchas) above their legs? Why will the faddist for fashion wear January furs and velvets in August? Why—why—but enough. These are only some of the insane mistakes that nearly all girls commit. Many of them with artistic tastes and capacities in every direction except dress.

Their eyes may shine with pleasure at a sunset—or a sunflower—which nevertheless they take no hint from. Very few women know what style of dress suits them best or what colors. Some neglect themselves. Even those who study the art, study it wrongly.

One may often see a woman who has the qualities and makings of a dignified posess, pose as a coquette. Or a tiny creature attempt to be stately who can only be cunning and simple.

The best grace is perfect naturalness. Our manners form themselves, but we must first form our setting of them.

Our clothes should harmonize as nearly as possible with our types and figures—never obtrusive in shape or color. Nature does much, but she must be respected and not ridiculed.

Art in landing a hand should never overstep the power to help and not strive to improve the gifts of intelligence and beauty nature has bestowed.

STATE LABOR BUREAU FILLS 100,000 POSITIONS

Fresno's Branch Stands
Well as Employment
Agency

Over 100,000 positions have been filled by the public employment bureau of the state of California on September 1 since their establishment nineteen months ago, according to the report issued yesterday by John P. McLaughlin, Fresno branch bureau was established August 23, and during the first week 616 employees were furnished, and each week has seen an increase in the number. The bureau is proving an aid to the raising growers' lumber mills and ranches throughout the valley, and satisfaction has been expressed on both sides on the result.

Beginning last March when labor conditions in California began to be abnormal, an opportunity was given to the state labor bureau to show their effectiveness. Orders for help poured in, with the result that during the last six months the business of the bureau has more than doubled.

as compared with the corresponding six months of last year.

Fresno Bureau Commanded.
"The placement records of the bureau," says the report, "are as follows: San Francisco, 41,583; Los Angeles, 28,145; Oakland, 15,253; Sacramento, 14,625. On August 23, C. B. Rexton, the superintendent of the employment bureau, established a branch in Fresno, and it has already proven a big aid to the employers there, especially in the raising growers. During its first week's business 616 employees were furnished and this record was more than equalled the following week. While the bureau in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland and Sacramento have been doing a splendid service, it was found that they served only a comparatively small portion of the state, chiefly due to the cost of transportation. And the establishment of the Fresno office is only a step in the direction of gradually establishing employment clearing houses in every labor center in order to give maximum service to the employers and employees."

Diversity of Occupations.
Men and women have been placed in every known kind of work since the inauguration of the bureau. The diversity of occupations filled are shown in the following tabulation given in the report: Building and construction, 11,985; clerical and professional, 981; foods, beverages and tobacco, 1,127; hotels and restaurants, 15,308; woods and lumber mills, 4,461; farm laborers, 11,402; metals and machinery, 3,289; mining and quarries, 1,840; private homes, 4,721; wholesale and retail trades, 3,493; transportation and public utilities, 17,202; occupations, 20,993.

It is estimated that the money saved in fees during the last six months in operation amounts to $205,000.

American Lake Camp Is Beauty Spot Where Soldiers Cared for

Back from the north coast section, after an absence of two months, Mrs. H. L. Alexander has a story to tell of the activities in Red Cross circles that has about it much of human interest, showing that the Canadian people have been brought to the deeper realization of the fact that the nations of the world are at war.

Mrs. Alexander, later joined by Mr. Alexander, went as far north as Victoria, stopping at all important intermediate points and at each city took the trouble to inquire into the conditions that prevail, particularly as touching the work that is being done by the women of the Canadian Red Cross.

The training camp of the United States army, at American Lake, was also visited. According to Mrs. Alexander, the women of the northwest have generally taken to knitting for the men in the trenches, and this work has been the most of bringing about something of a change in the matter of knitting in churches.

So insistent has become the demand for the knitted garment, and so eager are the women to help the word has gone out that knitting is to be permitted and urged during the hours of service in the churches.

One of the sights that particularly impressed Mrs. Alexander was this bit of initiative as she attended church for the first time at Victoria. The place of worship was crowded, for with the deepening of the war consciousness the people are more and more finding their way to the sanctuary. Through the great congregation the spirit of devotion was marked but as the women listened to the gospel, exhortation and exhortation the knitting needles were being plied with an earnestness and concentration that indicated the fact that those people were fully aware that the life of the nation—the perpetuation of a great principle—in the balance.

Some ingenious person, however, has robbed the knitting needle of its "charm." This feature which might be disturbing in a great congregation being removed in the creation of a needle made of bamboo.

Disabled Men Help.
And therein lies another story that is related by Mrs. Alexander. In nearly all of the cities and in all of the hospitals, there are "men who" sent home on furlough, disqualify for the time for the more active work in the trenches and some beyond.

power of further service. Among those to be undertaken is the work of many who have become expert in the manufacture of the bamboo needle, so that as the women knit, the men no longer of service in the trenches, are manufacturing the needle that makes possible the efficient work during the silent hours of worship of the church.

Not is this all. In every city visited, Mrs. Alexander found the fact that "knitting" found in evidence. Women of all classes carry the bag and the bag is loaded with the cars, on the boats, in hotel lobbies, in the parks—everywhere whenever there may be a few moments of other-wise idleness, the knitting is brought out and the knitted garments for the soldier boys are growing apace.

The Sock Without a Heel.
And there was another feature of the women of the northwest that deeply interested Mrs. Alexander, and that is the question of the heelless sock that are being made for the soldier boys.

Whether or not this creation has the sanction of the Red Cross authorities is not of record, but at one time the women are very sure—the boys in the ranks and in the trenches are strong for the heelless sock.

The soldier boys explain that when the sock is made just "on the straight," the toe alone turned, as is now being done, there is the widest latitude as to just where the hole, if hole there be, shall or may be worn.

The women are also knitting the sock minus the long toe—not much higher than the shoe top, the idea being that when the soldier has the calf of a leg swathed in a heavy sock, supplemented by unrelenting trousers and leggings, there is covering for that part of the anatomy that proves well high insufferable. So the sock are being knit in the short and on the straight.

At American Lake.
On the return trip, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander visited at the American Lake training camp, where Uncle Sam

Women Busy Knitting Socks for Soldiers; Can't Sit on Jury

The jury trial of William Scott, accused of cruelty to animals, will be held this morning before City Justice Graham, but Scott will take a man jury in place of a jury of twelve women. Justice Graham suggested a woman jury, but Constable Drenth found so many women busy knitting that he did not have time to serve to summon them for jury service. So more men will appear today to decide the guilt or innocence of Scott.

Y. W. C. A. Invites Young Women of Fresno
to Enroll

Continuing its policy of directing the usefulness of its members into patriotic channels, the directors of the Y. W. C. A. urge all young women who attended the Red Cross first aid and surgical dressing classes to attend a special lecture by Miss Julia Sayre, president of the Y. W. C. A., after her report of the war council and Asiatic conference, which she will give tonight at the Y. W. C. A.

Group meetings will be held with the separate classes after the lecture, and arrangements for examinations for all Red Cross bureau of nursing classes will be fixed.

The examinations will be conducted under the supervision of Miss Marion Smith and Miss Lou Adams, Red Cross nurses, who conducted the classes last year.

Examination papers were not received in Fresno until this week owing to delay in Washington.

The directors have arranged that all young women wishing to enroll in first aid classes, this fall can register at this meeting or as soon as possible thereafter. As soon as twenty members have been registered classes will be opened. Fresno first aid will close for registration.

Books for registration will open for classes in elementary hygiene, and home care for the sick. This will be known as class 3-A, division, Fresno Red Cross bureau of nursing service.

All girls who took first aid in Y. W. C. A. Red Cross classes last year will be given preference in making up the lists for nursing service classes.

is whipping 50,000 men into shape for the overseas conflict, the camp that is soon to take care of the men sent out from Fresno.

This camp is about seven miles out from Tacoma, and the Alexander state that in the matter of equipment there has been left nothing to the imagination. Every possible comfort and convenience is there for the men who are to be sent to the front.

As far as the eye can see, at the American Lake Park, there stretches out long vistas of barracks, the grounds in perfect order, the men well clad and all seeming to enjoy the life to which they have been called.

Mrs. Alexander also stated that in the Canadian hospital, the women there serving are the women of wealth who have discarded the life of ease and are now in the business of being servant to all—not the butterfly society women but the women who have been brought to the realization, through the supreme sacrifice made by the men, that war is all that was claimed for it in the utterance of Gen. Sherman.

Mrs. Alexander further states that should there be a Fresno church desirous of instituting the service knitting, then it will be her pleasure to secure the bamboo needles, or put someone in the way of securing them for the use of the Fresno parishioners.

GREEKS TO REVEAL CONSTANTINE'S INTRIGUES

Possession of

Sees Its Field of Influence in Eastern Part of Mediterranean

ATHENS, Aug. 16. (Associated Press Correspondence.)—The minister of foreign affairs, Pallas, was busy putting the finishing touches on the White Book, which is to reveal to the Greek people the extent to which the recent administration of King Constantine was under German influence, when a staff correspondent of The Associated Press called on him today.

"This makes a serious record of portents," the minister said, on glancing over some of the proof sheets of the White Book.

"He spoke in a tone of regret of these unpleasant revelations, which were made, he said, only that the public might be aware of what extent German influence operated in shaping the neutral regime of Greece up to the time of King Constantine's recent abdication.

Asked what aspirations Greece was likely to have before the peace congress, Pallas said:

"Wherever, of course, the larger general questions in which the Entente allies have shown a common interest and to which Greece naturally gives the fullest assent—the independence and sovereignty of each state, great and small; its territorial integrity as against the ambitions of other nations; an international pact for the maintenance of peace, the observance of treaties and the re-establishment of international law and practice in the dealings between nations.

"There are several questions relating to the Near East," he continued, "which Greece seeks to have regulated. Most important of these is the guaranty of protection to Greeks living in Turkey and Asia Minor, where we have over 3,000,000 Greeks engaged in peaceful occupations, but constantly under the menace of fearful atrocities. Throughout this territory Greeks have been subjected to the most barbarous cruelty. Hundreds of Greek towns in Turkey and Asia Minor have been burned, the inhabitants have been subjected to massacre and many have been deported to the interior of Asia Minor.

"In this work of cruelty we have proof that the Germans have been worse than the Turks. When the Turk has hesitated at some extreme barbarity, we have evidence showing that it has been the German-general staff headquarters which has given the order to proceed to the limit. In the exterminating methods against the Greeks, it is against such wholesale barbarity that we will ask the powers to establish some for most guaranty."

The minister spoke of the recent Balkan conference at Paris as highly satisfactory in its result.

Greater Serbian State
The minister was asked if Greece had an interest in the issue of nationalities between Serbia and Austria, by which Serbia might detach the southern Slav nationalities from Austrian domination, Croats, Serbs, Slovaks, etc., and mold them into a great Slav state of the Balkans.

"As the ally and one of the nearest friends of Serbia, we are naturally interested in seeing her aspirations realized," said the minister. "We all hope that Serbia will not only have its territory restored, as the Allied powers demand, but that it will emerge from this conflict a new and greater Serbia, uniting its southern Slav nationalities into one Yugoslav state, which, as Dr. Troumbitch, the Yugoslav leader, has said, will, with Greece, shape the future destinies of the Balkans.

"It is as a seapower, of the eastern Mediterranean and the Adriatic that Greece has its chief field of activity," was suggested to the minister.

"Not in the Adriatic," he said, "for our interests in Epirus and the islands of Corfu are south of the Strait of Otranto, leading to the Adriatic. It is Italy, which has the chief interest in the locality, with its military establishment at Ancona just across the Strait of Otranto from Italy.

"It is in the eastern Mediterranean and chiefly in the Aegean sea that our field of influence lies," the minister went on. "The Aegean sea is a Greek sea and Greek influence prevails through all the islands down to Asia Minor."

Hope To Get Greece
"As to the island of Cyprus, now owned by England, it was offered to Greece during the regime of King Constantine, on condition that Greece would immediately enter the war with the allies. But as we did not immediately take part in the war, the offer does not hold good. There is no desire to press England in this respect, for we feel that when the dual settlement comes the generosity of England will make Cyprus a Greek island. It is already Greek in nationality, with four-fifths of its population of 350,000 people Greeks."

"As Greece is the allied country lying nearest to Turkey, what is her attitude toward the Dardanelles and Constantinople?" the minister was asked.

"Above all," he said, "it is our desire to see the Dardanelles freed from its Turkish forts and its hindrance to natural world traffic and to have it become a link in the world's commerce, the same as the Straits of Gibraltar, the Panama canal, linking the Atlantic and the Pacific. The same terms laid down by the allies in their reply to President Wilson, required the withdrawal of the Turk from Europe and recognized Russia's aspirations at Constantinople and the Dardanelles. Russia would expect some permanent means by which its vast empire shall have an outlet from the Black sea to the ocean and thus to the ports and markets of the world. This is a point to be reached a legitimate aspiration, which we naturally would desire very much to support, whether it was accomplished by Russian authority at Constantinople or by neutralization of the straits in which all the world would share with Russia in free access to and from the Black sea."

"Historically Greece might naturally have some aspirations in the Oriental field if Turkey is to withdraw from Europe, for our islands are clustered around the Dardanelles and Greek territory stretches almost to the Turkish frontier. We have, besides, some 3,000,000 Greeks in Turkey and Asia Minor, and from the viewpoint of nationality, our interest is greater than that of any other country."

"If he thought a peace conference was within reasonable sight, the minister said he would not venture a prediction, as he had made a bet on that subject once or twice."

"But there is one very definite thing, said as to that peace," said the minister, "and that is that the entrance of the United States into the war, alongside of Great Britain, assures a victorious peace for the Entente allies. If there was any doubt as to it before, all doubt is gone. In my judgment, when these two colossal powers, united for a common purpose, I have not agreed, therefore, when some have said that the entrance of the United States would be a financial and material gain, but would not really affect the final outcome. On the contrary, I feel that the entry of the United States, bringing its tremendous moral and material force along with England's is the turning point and decisive factor in the war. It is America that has secured the victory of the Entente allies."

The two engineers, promised the government, if given an opportunity, they would design a satisfactory engine before a working model could be brought from Europe.

"A remarkable American engine was actually produced three weeks before any model could have been brought from Europe. Twenty-eight days after the drawings were started, the new engine was set up. This was on July 3."

"With the need for speed as an incentive, tools for building the first engine were made even before the drawings were finished, on the assumption that they would be correct. Twelve scattered factories:

"Parts of the first engine were turned out at twelve different factories, located all the way from Connecticut to California. When the parts were assembled the adjustment was perfect and the performance of the engine was wonderfully gratifying. This in itself demonstrates the capabilities of American engineering when put to the test and when thoroughly organized for emergency work of this sort."

"One of the chief sales outlined at the beginning of the designing work was that no engineer should be permitted to introduce construction which had not been tried out. There was no time for theorizing. The new engine is successful because it embodies the best thought of engineering experience to date. Representatives in the United States of England, France and Italy cooperated in the development of this motor."

"Thirty days after the assembling of the first engine preliminary tests justified the government in formally accepting the engine as the best aircraft engine produced in any country. The final tests confirmed our faith in the new motor in every degree."

"Both the flying and altitude tests of the new motor have been gratifying. One test was conducted at Pike's Peak, where it performed satisfactorily at this high altitude. One of the engines, in an airplane, broke the American altitude record in a recent flying test."

"While it is not deemed expedient to discuss in detail its performance and mechanism of the new motor, it may be said that standardization is a chief factor in the development of the governments' motor. Cylinders, valves and every other part of the motor may be produced rapidly and economically by a great many factories operating in all parts of the country."

LIFE OF ROMANOFF EXILES IN CRIMEA

RUSSIAN IMPERIAL FAMILY
Not Allowed Out of Certain Area

PETROGRAD, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Some of the Romanoffs have turned to farming, astronomy, aeronautics, viticulture, and the writing of memoirs and history as a means of passing the time while in semi-imprisonment in the Crimea.

The former Dowager Empress, Marie, mother of Nicholas II, resides at Al-Todor, near Yalta, and there engages in tilling the soil. With her here is her son, the former Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovich, and his wife, the former Grand Duchess Xenia, and their children. The Duke studies the stars and astronomical science and grows grapes for wine.

For a time he pursued archeological research, for which Crimea is a fertile field, but the authorities later forbade this, suspecting some untoward and unexpected purpose in his explorations and excavations.

The former Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaevitch, who was once commander-in-chief of the army on the southern front, lives on his estate at Tschepi, also near Yalta. He is writing memoirs intended to be preserved in the Academy of Sciences and published after his death. He is engaged also on a monograph, "Who is Really Responsible for the World War," which will appear in a historical review.

None of the Romanoffs in Crimea is allowed to go outside a so-called neutral zone, which is guarded by military patrols. Their correspondence is examined by a censor. Their food rations are the same as those issued by military authorities, with their requests denied when they ask for more than the card system permits. As an illustration, the Dowager Empress was unable to obtain 120 pounds of sugar for the making of jam.

Recently, the Dowager Empress was permitted to go to a nearby village, where Nicholas' former residence is now being used as a military hospital. This building contains dozens of secret passages and marked wall-cupboards. All of these have been sealed. The visitor was denied admission to the rooms which were her son's private quarters.

THE WORLD WAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Senator Lodge's bill to permit Americans to retain decorations received from allied governments for military service when they enter the American army was passed today by the Senate and now goes to the House. Present law forbids such decorations on American troops. Many Americans who have been decorated for valor want to join their country's forces but hesitate to give up the marks of bravery they have won.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.—The government has issued an order doubling the fixed price of cereals. The order also provides for increased remuneration for freight on these foodstuffs.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Sept. 12.—Orders to proceed immediately with completion of Camp Fremont near here for training of new guard troops were received today from the war department, according to Lieutenant Colonel W. G. Pfeiffer, constructing quartermaster in charge. Work on the camp was recently suspended by the war department following a controversy with state health authorities regarding the sewer system.

Socialists Finally Consent to Take Part in Government

PARIS, Sept. 12.—All Painleve has succeeded in organizing a ministry to replace the Ribot cabinet. For a time the Socialist radical group presented an obstacle to the formation of a ministry, but the five Socialist radical members of the cabinet, as selected by Painleve, where the united Socialists were not represented. These men, Ribot, Vincent, Bernard, Renard and Long, informed the party that they had accepted the party before the party had reached this decision and there was a bond of honor to remain. The matter has been dropped.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 12.—Camp Lewis at American Lake, near here, began today to assume a definite military appearance, following the distribution of army clothing and equipment to nearly 2,500 members of the selective draft quota. ROARING FARCE

COMEDY AT KINEMA

Marguerite Clark doing stunts that would make Fatty or Doug do some bumping come flying thick and fast in her latest play called "The Amazons" at the Kinema. Three days of growing popularity of Minnie's roaring farce comedy, which presents the inevitable Marguerite in trousers. Will Try Anything—Not Once But Twice.

And Miss Marguerite not only dons trousers, but puts on the boxing gloves, rides bareback, and, oh! the shame of it! knocks out a tough with a big bang to the point of the jaw. Then, she slides down from a three story window and hiccups her way home to her parents asking "Wash a mazzor?" Talk about a tomboy—why the joyful, battle of tomatoes and bananas showed that the diminutive darling of the screen isn't afraid of anything. Laugh and the World Laughs With You.

The entire program at the Kinema is one royal shout of laughter. "The Amazons" most certainly is a scream—while the new feature Mark Bennett offers is simply a riot. The stunts that the Keyholders pull is almost beyond belief. The yellowest "inlet" of the good old days can't hold a candle to it. From sinking ships in mid-ocean to a self-starting Ford is easy.

TWO CHAPTERS OF GRAY GHOST, RIJOU

The management of the Bijou announces a return engagement by re-quest of the first chapter of the thrilling new serial "The Gray Ghost." This will be played in conjunction with the second chapter entitled "The Mysterious Message." The repetition of this chapter will give those who have not seen it an opportunity to get the start of one of the finest serials ever released, and those who have seen it, will find it more interesting for being shown with the second chapter. In the second chapter Hildreth arrives in New York after receiving a message on shipboard stating that Arabin (the Jeweler) has reserved rooms for him but that he will be unable to meet him. The message is in reality from The Gray Ghost who has his toes planted all along Hildreth's path. Hildreth does not fall in with the Gray Ghost's plans as easily as he anticipates, and the Gray Ghost goes to Morn Light's apartments. From there he telephones Hildreth that he is Arabin and that he has engaged suits at the theatre that evening. Morn Light threatens to warn Hildreth that he is being duped and picks up the telephone; the Ghost grabs it and chokes her into submission as the picture fades out. William Frimley in "Behind the Map," and the Universal Current Events film complete Thursday's program. Friday will bring Ellis Page in "Seventy and Seven," a delightful film play that is full of interest from start to finish. "The Grady Jag" and "Hattie's Bath" will bring shouts of laughter.

SON OF FRESNAN IS WOUNDED IN FRANCE

J. W. Moore, president of the Fresno Academy of Music, yesterday received a cablegram from England telling him that his son, Captain Herbert Moore of the British army, had been fatally wounded and is lying in a hospital in France. The message was sent by his daughter-in-law, Captain Moore was formerly on a British submarine. The cablegram gave no details.

J. W. Moore has one other son now in the American army and a daughter serving as a Red Cross nurse at the front. Unable to meet him. The message is in reality from The Gray Ghost who has his toes planted all along Hildreth's path. Hildreth does not fall in with the Gray Ghost's plans as easily as he anticipates, and the Gray Ghost goes to Morn Light's apartments. From there he telephones Hildreth that he is Arabin and that he has engaged suits at the theatre that evening. Morn Light threatens to warn Hildreth that he is being duped and picks up the telephone; the Ghost grabs it and chokes her into submission as the picture fades out. WILL KING, HEBREW COMEDIAN, AT PLAZA

Will King, perhaps the best known Hebrew comedian on the coast, is announced for a short run of musical comedy stock at the Plaza Air dome.

For the past four years, King and his clever company have been appearing in Oakland continuously with sensational success, having in his support, perhaps the cream of the talent, at present in the west.

Will King is not altogether a stranger to Fresno, having appeared here several years ago as a co-star of the organization headed by Dillon and King, and has many friends who remember his excellent humor and quaint mannerisms.

Among those prominent in the company are Renee Gardner, formerly with Rock and Fulton in "The Candy Shop," Will Hayes, Jack Wae, Laura Vail, Clair Starr and Alice (Babe) Lewis.

A dozen American Beauties constitute the chorus among whom are said to be several of the most promisingly talented chorus girls whose individual work is no small factor in the shows. The costuming is all new and designed in duplicate of the best now being shown on Broadway.

The plays to be presented are absolutely new to Fresno, many having been written exclusively for King. Special scenery and lighting effects will enhance the productions.

On securing King and his company, the Plaza Air dome has decided to discontinue the present policy of vaudeville to make way for the Musical Comedy which opens next Sunday September 16th.

MEAT PLANTS TO BE CONTROLLED

Packers Voluntarily Offer to Submit to Hoover

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Government regulation of the meat packing industry will be the next move of the food administration. A voluntary offer of representatives of the packers to put their plants under a licensing system made to Herbert S. Hoover, food administrator, at a conference here today, was accepted and a plan of control will be drawn up shortly.

The packers, numbering about a score, came to Washington to take up with Hoover the threatened meat shortage and the subject of rising prices. They are of one opinion that prices can be brought down little unless a determined effort is made to increase the production of livestock in export demand, they believe, will maintain prices at a high level until after the war has ended. A licensing system for packing houses was provided in the food control bill. Putting it into operation, food administration officials believe, will go far towards eliminating hoarding and speculation and stabilizing prices. The packers will confer soon with cattle growers to discuss the food administration's plan for removing herds from the west to better feeding districts in the east and south.

Increased production of livestock is a military necessity, Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture, declared in a statement tonight, after the packers' meeting ended.

SCOTT NEARING'S HOUSE IS RAIDED

I. W. W. Headquarters in Toledo Also Searched for Sedition

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 12.—Federal authorities tonight raided the home of Professor Scott Nearing in search of literature which they said may have been used in a campaign of opposition to the army conscription law. Professor Nearing is a lecturer on socialistic questions. The authorities also invaded the headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World. Nearing came here two years ago from the University of Pennsylvania. No arrests were made at either place. Important documents were seized at both, the authorities announced.

Professor Nearing was among the delegation which met in Chicago on September 3 under the name of the People's Council of America for Terms of Peace and a member of the national executive committee.

Until a few months ago Professor Nearing held the chair of arts and science at Toledo university. He was dropped from the faculty of that institution because of his alleged un-American remarks at the time the United States was threatened with war with Germany.

BULGARIAN QUEEN DIES.

PLAN RETURN TO BISBEE DISTRICT

Deported Men Ask for Protection in Arizona

COLUMBUS, N. M., Sept. 12.—Announcement of their intention to return to Bisbee "to settle their affairs and get their effects," was contained in telegrams to Governor Thomas Campbell of Arizona and to President Wilson today by the executive committee of the men deported from Bisbee, Ariz., July 12, and who are in camp here. The telegrams were sent after the men had failed to receive replies to telegrams sent to Washington Saturday and yesterday protesting against the reduction of the rations supplied to the exiles by the military authorities here.

The message addressed to President Wilson reads:

"Bisbee deportees cannot exist on half rations. We are proceeding to Bisbee without protection or funds. If we are again deported and some killed or injured we feel that you had better protect us and would not do so. Common American citizens here are convinced they have no constitutional rights."

Forwards Message

PHOENIX, Arizona, Sept. 12.—After receiving a message from members of the refugee camp at Columbus, N. M., composed of men deported from Bisbee, July 12, stating that they desired to return to Bisbee to get their belongings, Governor T. B. Campbell forwarded the message to Sheriff Harry Wheeler at Bisbee but tonight had received no reply from the sheriff. The governor took no other action.

Previously word had been received from Bisbee that criminal charges were pending against some of the men and that they would be prosecuted if they return.

MEN FROM ANVIL HELD AT SAN DIEGO

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 12.—After a thorough examination, concluded this evening, of the officers, crew, passengers, cargo and papers of the gasolin schooner "Anvil" brought here from 300 miles south of this port, the department of justice held nine men who were aboard. The prisoners were sent to the county jail, where they were held tonight.

The nine men are detained on the ground that they are subject to the war draft bill and have not registered for service.

Only two of the nine admitted being American citizens. They described themselves as Charles Millery of Oklahoma and Carl Curtis of Oklahoma. The others who at first said he was Carl Jones of Elko, Nevada. They were questioned concerning draft rights in Oklahoma.

CONFERENCE PLANS TO DEFEAT DISLOYALTY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Prominent men and women in commercial, agricultural, political, educational and religious fields attended a conference here today to lay plans for creating "a militant public opinion able to meet and defeat disloyalty."

Secretaries Daniels, Lane and Houston outlined the administration's activities and America's purposes in the war. George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information, told of the government's needs in the present emergency. Everett Macy of New York, president of the National Civic Federation, was appointed to select a committee to weld the conference into a permanent organization.

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—The Swiss Socialists have been informed that, owing to violation of neutrality by Sweden, the much discussed conference at Stockholm has been definitely postponed, even by the Germans, who are seeking to hold a similar conference in Switzerland.

KORNILOFF TAKES TOWN EVACUATED BY KERENSKY ARMY

"I have faith in Russia. I have known the country more than twenty years and the people are good. Whether General Korniloff will prove the savior of society I cannot tell. But of this I am sure: A military dictatorship has got to come."

After paying a tribute to General Korniloff as "at least a man of action," Korniloff said that the Russian people are in a desperate situation and a few compensating gains for the Germans in a further advance in Petrograd even if the time of the year and the character of the country permitted.

Russia, he says, is tired of the war just like all the other belligerent peoples, but is not tired enough to make a separate peace. He added:

"I can say with absolute confidence that the whole Russian people would be dead against a separate peace and would do the shortest work of any one who attempted to negotiate it."

Moscow With Kerensky

PETROGRAD, Tuesday, Sept. 11. A. M.—A clear indication of the opinion of Moscow according to reports received here, emphasize assurances of support to the provisional government, which have already been given by the municipal council. General Verkhovskiy called all the officers of the gasolin together in the public square, and was given assurance that they would support Provisional Kerensky. The Saint George cavaliers have made a special offer of their services, and there appears to be unity among the workmen's group.

Vladimir Purishkevich, the well known reactionary under the old regime, who was arrested at Dvinsk and later released, is reported again to be in custody.

Petrograd is said to have sufficient provisions to last four or five days.

Transfer Grand Dukes

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.—The newspapers here announced today by order of the government that Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovich and Grand Duke Alexander Pavlovich have been transferred from their private residence at Gatchina, near Petrograd, to the ministry of the interior.

Ex-Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovich is a brother of the deposed Tsar. He was born in 1879 and was married to Princess Maria of Romania. He was designated Grand Duke Michael as regent, but he in turn abdicated on the following day. Last week the former grand duke was arrested in connection with the discovery of a counter revolution plot.

Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovich is an uncle of the former emperor.

THE TRUMPET CALL

I dreamed last night of the trumpet call: "Come over and help us across the sea. Come over and help us, brothers all. We fight for justice and liberty!"

But my couch was soft and my comforts dear.

And the ones I loved had naught to fear.

So I sent this answer across the sea: "The sons of France shall fight for me. Russia's arms and the British fleet. Will shelter me in my safe retreat. Italy's brave are in the field, And Canada's troops will never field."

Again in the darkness I heard a call: "Come over and help us in the fight. For the cause of freedom we give our all. In the name of honor and truth and right!"

But my heart was sick with the desperate strife.

And I sent my answer across the sea: "The sons of France shall die for me. Russia's arms and the British fleet. Will guard this nation against defeat. Italy's troops are staunch and strong. And Belgium's faith shall conquer wrong."

Out of the East came a piercing cry: "This you in your safe retreat who die! Alive are the sons of France today. O'er the British fleet death holds no sway."

Russia's arms and Italy's brave. The valor of Belgium strong to save. These the immortal standards bear. You are the dead men over there. In the land made free by the blood of France.

Boasting with the strength of every land, Your fair flag droops in a nerveless hand.

At dawn I rose with my soul aflame, And I flashed this message across the sea: "With the living nations enroll my name. Brothers, we waken from our sleep. From stately mansion and workshop small."

From mine and mill and college hall, From mountain and vale and river down. Men of this nation are winding down. Sons of France, we will fight today! Fight for the debt we long to pay. Fight for the vaillant British fleet. Guarding our nation from defeat."

And when at last in some glorious morn The seas are a tumult and the world is born. And immortal standards in triumph wave Over the heads of the free and brave, Glory of France and Britain's pride, With the Stars and Stripes shall be side by side.

—Caroline Ticknor in Boston Transcript.

GERMANS HEAR OF U. S. ARMY
The Hamburger Fremdenblatt, commenting on the arrival of the American troops in France, publishes a report from Bern, which says:

"As for the Americans, an acquaintance assisted at their arrival. The enthusiasm with which they were received from the beginning is understandable. It is an extraordinary crowd and one can see that they are descended from immigrants."

"A number of the officers are millionaires' sons, who arrived on their own yachts."

"The Americans, like the English formerly, do not believe they can be shot to pieces in this war. For some reason they are not allowed to go to the front. They have arrived in the war zone, and now replace French troops who have left for the firing line."

The paper says bad feeling has been created in France by these measures. It says the Americans take life easy in their new surroundings.—Cable Dispatch in New York Times.

On circus day the homeless ones
On Maxwell truck with trailer
Saw elephants and gay parade

Happier were they than

BUTLER JOINS SALT LAKE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—Manager Bernhard of the Salt Lake coast league team today announced that he had "Johnny" Butler, formerly of the Lithium club of the Western league. Butler will play shortstop while Orr is on the coast.

THE SLAVE.

They say there are no slaves today. That man is free to come and go. To choose the part that we shall play. In what concerns him here below.

That this is false I plainly see: I cannot say who wrongs me, do, Unless perchance my plans agree With those of my dear little Sue.

She wants to romp when I would read. So on the floor I must get down. Perforce become her docile steed. And carry her in haste to town.

Sometimes a game of ball she wants. Again a round of hide and seek. Appeals to her in hidden haunts. And brings the roses to her cheek.

But best of all she likes to hear The tales of giant, elf and gnome. Who, when her bedtime hours near, Lurk in dark corners of our home.

Yes, a helpless slave am I. And yet what lavish wages mine! Love has become for brightest eye. Like that of some Arabian twine.

—Paul Gooding in Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

BEET ROOT AND TURNIP DIET

Beet root and turnips, on which Mr. Morgan, the American ex-consul had to sustain life during the latter part of his stay in Hamburg, are ancient articles of diet and it is interesting to recall what the Roman satirist Martial thought of them.

Beet root, he tells us, was the workman's meal and he condemns it as insipid, urine and pepper being used as condiments, but he highly appreciates turnips. These seem to him very unwholesome, for Romulus feasts on them in heaven.

Those who today hesitate to adopt the advice so freely given to try beets and turnips in place of potatoes may be induced to make the substitution on learning that the swede was just possibly the kind of turnip which Martial praised as delicious—London Chronicle.

THINK CRITICISM OF WORK UNJUST

Members District Board Claim Investigation Will Show Justice

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Sept. 12.—Among members of the Second California district exemption board, there is a feeling that an unjust criticism of the board's work has been made in the Kern county local board's complaint to the adjutant general in which it was alleged that they are limited to the selection of soldiers from "the poor without dependents" on account of the rulings of the appeal board. District officials believe that the complaint would bring to light the abuses in their acts. Secretary Written W. Harris denied that a permanent exemption had been granted on religious grounds, although undated exemption papers were sent a man, to remain undated until the provost marshal issues orders instructing boards how to certify religious objectors to war into non-combatant service.

EXEMPTION CLAIMS ARE PASSED UPON

County Board No. 2 yesterday passed upon the following claims:

Eleven men have been officially designated to make up the second contingent from Fresno city for the national army, and if it is definitely determined the men are to be sent on Wednesday, they will be summoned to appear at the selection headquarters next Tuesday. Men at about seventy men have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness to make up the second contingent. The men who will leave Fresno on the first day of enrollment are:

Edward Schary.
Walter Greenwood.
Joseph Walker.
Roy H. Day.
Henry Carpe.

SELECT MEN FOR NEXT CITY GROUP

It is now thought very probable that the city will secure its quota of 152 men, plus 10 per cent, without summoning another group of men for examination. The city has about fifteen examinations outside of Fresno that have not yet been reported upon and it is expected that from this number sufficient men will be received to make up the entire quota and the necessary extra men to be held in reserve.

FRESNO MAY NOT MAKE THIRD CALL

THE HALL OF INFAMY
The early morning is, to me
Unsuitable for gaiety;
In fact, I cannot veil my wrath
At those who sing while in their bath
In doubtful beds, and splash and shout
And make absurd remarks about
The glorious world. The world, as such,
At dawn does not attract me much.
This man, with whom I dwell, I find
Is of that wholesome turn of mind
Whereby he always feels most fit
When I am just the opposite.
And so I'll place within the hall
His manly statue, bath and all.
—W. R. Burlingame in the September Century.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR FRIENDS
An editorial in the September Woman's Home Companion says:
"It is most impolitic to be genuinely friendly with a person who insists on being too close to you, on knowing all your thoughts, feelings and affairs, and on claiming your time and attention on the excuse of affection."
"The bonds of true friendship must be easy and its demands must be for something real and vital. The woman who calls on you perpetually because she has a sudden fancy to you is a blind and selfish egotist, in a mild way. Her calls may interrupt your work and bore you intensely, but if you are a polite and courteous person you bear with her until she directs her attention elsewhere. She will probably tell the new friend that you are 'very unresponsive.' Some women clutch at every new acquaintance and then complain that they have no friends. The reason is that friendship is not built on trivialities and whims, but by giving such valuable things as true consideration, real interest, and manifesting a decent respect for the other person's confidences and non-confidences."

This is a Good Recipe.
Tomatoes With Ham Scraps.
Ham scraps
Pepper
Salt
1 cup milk
Cut into tiny pieces the fat that was removed from the slices of ham, and try out in a frying pan. Remove scraps to a plate, and in the fat saute tomatoes, sliced thin, until they are soft. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and thoroughly dredge with flour. When heated through but not too soft, remove tomatoes to a plate, and to fat in pan add two tablespoons flour. Stir until thick, add milk, stir until boiling point is reached, season to taste with salt and pepper, and pour into a hot platter. Sprinkle with the reserved ham scraps, and on top arrange slices of tomato. Put in the oven a moment and reheat before serving. September Woman's Home Companion.

ARMY OF RECRUITS FOR FAIR SERVICE GROWING

The Fresno district fair will have a vast army of boosters this year, for at the rate the youthful recruits have been enlisting their services there will not be a child under 15 in the neighborhood who will not be doing his part to make this year's fair the biggest yet. Youthful enthusiasm is contagious and if the grown-ups respond readily to the appeal of the children, have done the fair will be an unprecedented success.

The opportunity for registration will soon be over and those children who have not already registered are urged to do so at once, in order that they may receive their buttons and enlist their services before it is too late.

Children are not put under the slightest obligation other than to talk about the fair among their families and friends. They are merely required to register names, ages and weights at the office of the Fresno Republican or any of its branches, and a booklet will be given them, which will entitle them to admission to the fair grounds on Athletic day. Children who are unable to register in person can do so by filling out the coupon for that purpose found elsewhere in the paper.

Santa Barbara to Salinas By Stage 44 Years Ago

Santa Barbara Daily News prints the following interesting letter of the stage trip from Santa Barbara to Salinas made in May, 1873, forty-four years ago, written by Nellie Letrange:

"Richardson said: 'See Yosemite and die,' but pray live till you've come overland from Santa Barbara to San Francisco. It is the world's most beautiful trip, and you don't have to go, you may stop at Salinas as the rest of the journey is comparatively tame. But you have something to live for until you've climbed the mountains and looked back at our town and valley, and forward at the solemn gray Santa Ynez range, and caught as much of the side glimpse of beauty as possible with only two eyes, both placed with a strange lack of creative economy in one side of your head. There is grandeur and beauty enough in that ride to last half a life time, and fragmentary pictures will come back to me through all the years to come, not only of the glorious landscape, but the wild shadowy canyons, the rocky fortifications, made in the days when there were giants in the land, bright little streams, and endless variety of beautiful blossoms. ..."

"At Jax's the first station on this side we stopped for dinner, the hotel was a clean place to wait, but the only one I could find was already occupied by poison oak, and I did not tarry to dispute possession. Between Pal's and Ballard's is a broad beautiful valley that reminded me of Livermore, but it is a grain, the driver said, and is not cultivated."

"At Ballard's we changed stages and our kind and steady driver, called Woodard at Santa Barbara and Woodley all along the line, gave place to a dashing young fellow who looked as if he might drive a bargain or a quilt as skillfully as he did his four-in-hand, and seemed to be a general favorite on the road. We reached Sued just at sundown after passing through a valley that might have been a section of the San Joaquin that had dropped down there, being its alkali, but keeping all its wind in the transfer, and was alive with grasshoppers. Pointing over towards the sunset the driver called my attention to the village of La Graciosa, with the remark that we could only see it when it lay between us and the sun. The Graciosa postoffice is located at the Sued station on a road and a through. We had an excellent supper there, and started on our journey refreshed. Doctor E. (Brinkerhoff) who joined us at Ballard's advised me to ride inside, during the evening, where none of the night air was admitted, but the cold wind of the afternoon had died away, the soft night air and the beckoning stars were irresistible, and I clambered to my old place beside the driver, and rode very comfortably into San Luis Obispo, where we arrived at two o'clock in the morning. As we drove in the hotel I formed a hasty opinion as to whether we would do, that San Luis was a very shabby little town, and I did not see enough of it to afterwards correct the impression if it was a wrong one. The hotel was enveloped in darkness, but a yell from the driver, brought a man into the hall with a candle. 'Oh, Mac, oh Mac,' he called in every key, running up and down the aisle and throwing in sharp and snarl with perfect recklessness, but there was no response. The man at the door said that a lady was waiting, consulting himself with the driver, and I thought after that the individual inside must be shaving and making himself presentable, and I was just counseling myself with the thought that if I stood up the rest of the night, I could sit down so much earlier all the next day, when the driver appeared at the door, and I concluded that he'd spent the time in studying that startling dishabille. The two men escorted me to a room, and then started down the hall with the doctor, carrying three candles between them, and leaving me in utter darkness. When I succeeded in getting a light, I found my apartment was large and airy, with two huge double beds; and much will be forgiven that hotel for the refreshing sleep that came to me in the few hours that remained. Breakfast consisted of steak, and eggs, ham and eggs, and the eggs were good, before they were cooked. At seven with a coach and six we drove out of town, and over the beautiful hills in the pleasant Sabbath sunshine.

"Dinner at Paso Robles springs, where there is a fine hotel on the California plan, full of invader, a long dusty ride through country that seemed to grow dried and brown as we proceeded; and early evening found us at Plattsburg, where we took a supper that was as good as well cooked as any home could be, and prepared ourselves for the night's ride.

"There were nine inside, four of the gentlemen weighing two hundred pounds each, and it required very skillful pecking to arrange us. I was folded away in one corner where I rode for half an hour, protesting that I was not made for sections, like a flute or a parent fishing pole, when the stage stopped for a moment and I sent up a pathetic appeal to be allowed to ride outside. They told me that I'd freeze, but I thought if I might choose, I'd prefer freezing in the open, with room to expire in a dignified fashion, and without further delay I was elevated to the driver's seat. The kindly driver and phlegmatic gentleman who insisted in wrapping me with his blanket and shivered cheerfully the whole night through, made me very comfortable, and in the gray of the morning I greeted the first hazy glimpse of Salinas crossing, bright, rested and triumphant. There was breakfast, a change of coaches, a ride through Salinas valley, dry, brown, and forested with grasshoppers, and ten o'clock found us at the depot in Salinas city, a little settlement that may have a right to its ambitious designation ten years hence."

HOME GUARDS TO ELECT TONIGHT

Fresnians Urged to Attend Meeting at Which Officers to Be Named

Every man who has signed the muster roll for the home guards and every man who contemplates signing the roll is requested to attend the meeting that will be held tonight at the attorney for the purpose of electing officers for three of the four companies. The rolls will be open before the meeting and Mayor Toomey issues an appeal for every man to attend the meeting and join the home guards. Drills are held on different nights so that a man may attend at his own convenience. Mayor Toomey returned last night from Sacramento.

At the meeting in the armory last night S. L. Guller was elected captain of the company that he has been drilling. W. L. Gensler was elected first lieutenant and B. U. Brandt was named second lieutenant.

Officers will be elected tonight for companies that have been drilled by C. W. Repley, H. A. Sessions and Bert Russell.

FINAL RECOGNITION OF CARRANZA GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. -- Last steps in the formal recognition of the Carranza government in Mexico by the United States have been accomplished by formal notification of the election of Carranza as president and an acknowledgment by the United States. The proceeding is a technical one conforming to the usages of international relations, and the recognition of the Carranza government practically was complete several months ago.

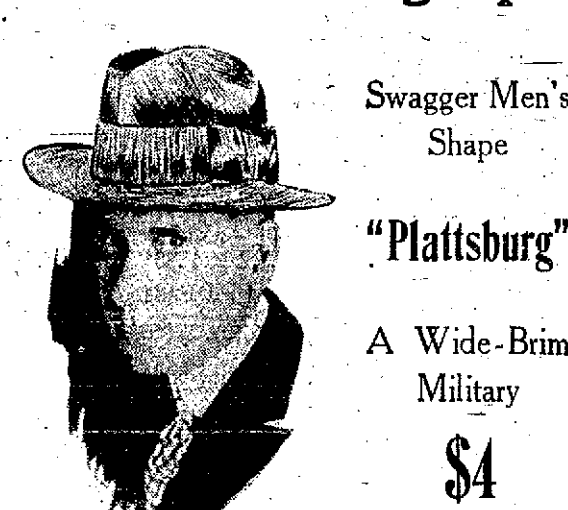

Officials took occasion today to reiterate that no loan to Mexico was contemplated by the United States. The status of a loan still is under consideration between the Mexican government and a group of American bankers.

How to Keep Well; Talks on Health

By DR. W. A. EVANS
Professor of Hygiene in Northwestern University and Former Health Commissioner of Chicago

POOREST CHANCE FOR FIRST BORN

In their study of infant welfare at Manchester, N. H., Mrs. Duncan and Miss Duke found that 13,750, or 20 per cent, of the entire population were French-Canadians. The French-Canadians were "generally thrifty, self-respecting people, ambitious to win their own homes and to accumulate property." They were very much disposed to live to themselves and to follow the customs which they had inherited.

Since French-Canadians usually have large families, this group furnished an opportunity to study baby death rates in a large city where both death and birth registration were unusually complete. The average number of children born to a French-Canadian family was 4.8; 24.1 per cent of the French-Canadian mothers had had four or less children; 18.5 per cent had had seven or nine children; 2.7 per cent had had ten or twelve, and 5 per cent had had more than thirteen children.

The general death rate is always lower than the birth. However, higher the death rate may be in infancy, the birth rate is always a good many points higher. Therefore, a race with a high birth rate always increases in population even though their baby death rate be excessive.

The reports found that where the families averaged less than three children the infant death rate was 148.7; where the mother had borne four or five it was 162.9; seven to nine, 181.5; ten to twelve, 214.4; thirteen to fifteen, 211.1.

The first baby born had the poorest chance of living. An important reason is that the mother knows only little of baby care. She learns on her first baby. The death rate of first babies was somewhere between 166 and 174. The mothers having learned on their first babies were able to achieve a lower death rate for the second, third, fourth, and fifth. Then the improvement came to a halt and the curve began to ascend. The death rate among babies ninth and later in the order of birth was 250. The later babies in these large families do not stand a good chance of living.

The babies of very young mothers have a high death rate. The death rate of babies whose mother was the first and the mother was under 20 was 241. Where the baby was the second the rate was 222.6. The babies born to mothers 10 and over had a death rate of 189.2. The babies born to mothers 30 to 39 years of age had the best chance of living. Part of this was due to the fact that they were sturdy babies. Part of it was due to the fact that the mothers of that age know how to care for their young. Among the foreign born mothers the best age for child bearing viewed from the standpoint of baby safety was 25 to 29. Foreign mothers start child bearing earlier.

Summarizing—The birth rate is always much higher than the baby death rate. The first baby has the poorest chance of living. The baby death rate in large families is always high. The later born babies have the highest death rates. Babies born to very young mothers have high death rates. The lowest baby death rates among the native born mothers are

ARMY TO EXHIBIT
AT FRESNO FAIRRecruits to Be Enlisted:
Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. to Have Booths

A recruiting station for the United States army will be maintained at the Fresno District Fair this year and will be in charge of Sergeant Williams. Arrangements have been completed with G. G. Eberhart, fair manager, to maintain the army booth at the fair grounds. Old Glory will fly from a flag pole in front of the recruiting tent and there will be a military atmosphere to remind young men that they are wanted in the ranks.

The Fresno Chapter of the Red Cross will also have a booth at the fair and there membership subscriptions will be accepted.

The Y. M. C. A. has also completed arrangements for a booth at the fair and it is expected that the Y. W. C. A. will be represented.

found when the mothers are 45 to 55. Among foreign born mothers at age of 25 to 29.

Treatment May Cure

Mrs. L. H. M. writes: "Will you kindly state whether or not your opinion of a tubercular gland in the neck is a serious condition and whether a treatment of tubercular injection will permanently relieve same, if accompanied by a nourishing diet, including milk, etc., fresh air, and a generally hygienic method of living? Is operation usually necessary?"

REPLY.—Tubercular glands in the neck are not of great consequence if promptly cared for. Tuberculin, good food, fresh air and sunlight will cure most cases. Operation is not usually necessary.

Have Growth Removed

ANOTHER mother writes: "My daughter is 16 years old and some time ago she observed that her right breast was increasing in size over that of her left one. Now a distinct, round, hard lump can be felt when the hand is placed over it. It makes her one side about twice as large as the other. It pains her greatly a few days prior to her menstrual period, especially when she raises her arm. Neither can she sleep on her right side without pain. What, in your opinion, causes this? What steps do you suggest in order that it might be secured better future comfort and health for her?"

REPLY.—It is probable that this is a cyst or else some other form of benign tumor. It will be safe and more satisfactory generally to have the growth removed.

Karell's Milk Cure

J. S. writes: "Will you please explain what Karell's milk cure is, or else state where directions may be found?"

REPLY.—Karell's milk cure consists in taking six ounces of milk at four hour intervals during the day and taking no other food or drink. The bowels are kept open by mineral oil if needed. After a week a few articles, such as fruits, vegetables, meat, and honey are added to the diet gradually. The treatment is used for conditions in which droopy is present. It is also used for obesity.

Nose-Bleeding Remedy

G. B. writes: "What should a boy of 16 do to check excessive nose bleeding? It occurs several times a week and is worse on hot days."

REPLY.—Grasp the nostrils so as to compress them. Lean forward. Remain in this position for ten to fifteen minutes. The pressure on the nostrils gradually, do not disturb the clot in the nose for some time. It is possible that a physician could locate the spot which bleeds. If so he will touch it with a cautery and prevent a repetition of the bleeding.

MERCED WILL OPEN SCHOOLS SEPT. 17

Important Changes to Be Made; Four Year Commercial Course

MERCED, Sept. 12.—After a vacation prolonged two weeks beyond the regular period, in order to enable students to aid in the crop harvest work, both the Merced high and grammar schools will open next Monday for the 1917-18 term. The buildings of both schools have been renovated and disinfected during the summer.

At the high school a number of important changes will be effective at the beginning of the new term. One will be the inauguration of compulsory physical training for both boys and girls. The boys' work will take place outdoors except, perhaps, in rainy weather. The girls will have their exercises in a new building now being erected on the high school grounds for the work. Principal A. W. Meany and instructor B. G. Nelson will have charge of the physical training of the boys, and Mrs. Mary Hall and Miss Kathleen Pye will conduct the gymnastic classes for the girls.

The erection of an annex for the second drawing classes now in progress will enable students enrolling for that course to work under better conditions than heretofore. The building will be specially lighted according to the requirements for such work. Another important change is the extension of the commercial course from two to four years. The class which entered the commercial department of the school last year will be allowed to graduate at the close of the ensuing year, but all new students in that department will be required to pass a four-year course before being awarded a diploma. The lengthening of this course enables the faculty to add several lines of study for commercial students, which will broaden their general educational foundation. These courses will be two years of English, work, general science, United States history and civics.

The institution of a night school in connection with the commercial department is under consideration by faculty and trustees. Whether this will eventually be added upon whether or not for the purpose of enabling ambitious persons who work during the day and desire to improve their time at night to prepare for advancement. Commercial branches and possibly some English work will be taught in the night school if it is established, stated Principal A. W. Meany today.

During the summer the school has added a number of volumes to the reference library, including chemistry, bookkeeping, history, Spanish. Additional laboratory equipment also has been purchased for use this year. Principal Meany estimates that the enrollment this year will be 250 students, a prospective gain over the maximum enrollment of last year, which was 225 pupils. The registration of new students will occur next Saturday, and the old students will report for registration on Monday. Instruction will commence on Tuesday. The assignment of classes to teachers is as follows:

Principal Meany, typing, stenography and commercial law.
Miss Louise Norvell, history and Latin.
Mrs. Rebecca Nelson, bookkeeping, penmanship, spelling, stenography and typing.
Miss Kathleen Pye, English and physical culture.
Mrs. Mary Hall, English, commercial, Spanish and physical culture.
Miss Donnell, Greek, plain geometry, algebra, Latin.
Miss Ruth de Wit, typing, German, Spanish.
Fred Cole, algebra, general science, physics and chemistry.
B. G. Nelson, manual training, mechanical drawing, physical culture.
Miss Florence Beckman, household science and music.
Miss Caroline Kennedy, fresh and drawing.

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 12.—Petitions were placed in circulation here this afternoon and the legal number of signers secured, asking the board of supervisors of Tulare county to start condemnation proceedings to secure a right of way for the proposed Porterville-Springville highway through the Baird orchard and the Monahan Land Company's tract on East Putman avenue. Change in the location of the Springville highway is sought by an extension through the orchard property named, and thence southeasterly to a point a mile north of the Reservation school. Such a location would avoid two bad grades and three dangerous corners. Determination to petition for the condemnation was reached when a committee of business men this morning failed to secure from Robert Baird, owner of the Winter haven orchard, an agreement to deed sufficient land for the right of way.

PROTESTS FORFEITED GAME.
CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—James C. Dunn, president of the Cleveland Americans, today protested the game which Umpire Owen forfeited to Chicago last Sunday with the score tied in the tenth inning. Owen forfeited the game because he believed the Cleveland players were making a burlesque out of the contest.

Dunn contends that Umpire Owen should have expelled the offending players from the game instead of forfeiting it, as there was no concerted attempt of the team as a whole to delay the game.

And Then He Went Back

By Walt Gregg

MISS BETTY paused as she reached her front gate. "Some one has moved in the Dean house at last," she thought, looking at the cottage next her own. "They have come during my absence. And there are children, too. Oh, dear me!" she said as a sturdy four-year-old boy came galloping madly around the corner of the house opposite and with furious whoops gave chase to Betty's old cat, which sat sunning itself on the walk.

"I just simply can't stand this," she said, as the cat leaped the fence and sped home. "I will not put up with a lot of little savages. From this day my place is for sale."

She opened her door and the cat accompanied to a place of safety inside. Betty was greatly disturbed. For years she had lived next the Dean house, which was closed, never to be opened again, so rumor said. However, the neighbors' children were now under her nose. She did not exactly hate children, but she did not understand them. She would not be tormented with a lot of noisy little folks—no indeed. As she tossed her hat and wraps aside there came a thunderous clatter at the front door. She hastened to open it. There stood that awful child.

He reached out a grimy hand. "A tookie," he said, "want tookie?"

"Who are you?" asked Betty severely.

He hesitated. Then he smiled. "I am one and—two and—three and—four and—five and—my buvers."

"Five brothers," gasped Betty, shocked at such a supply of boys at close range—"Five brothers?"

"Yes, buvers." Again he held out his dirty hand. "One and—want tookie—free, four tookies. No tookies home."

"I've no tookies, either."

She looked so severe that his courage waned. His childish lips quivered. "One and—" He put his two soiled hands on his stomach. "I hungry—here," he announced anxiously. His eyes were big and beautiful, with a twinkle in them.

Somehow the eyes had a strangely familiar look about them to Betty. Somewhere she had seen eyes like them. Unconsciously her heart warmed ever so slightly toward the towheaded waif. "Come with me, you ridiculous person. I'll find some bread and butter, maybe. But I've no cake in the house."

Instantly he accepted her invitation and grasping a fold of her dress marched by her side to the pantry. She found a box of crackers and a jar of peach jam. He looked disappointed, but at what she gave him. Betty made a fire in her cook stove. Then she put potatoes on to boil and put a lot of chunking little sausages in the frying pan to cook. Somehow she warmed more and more toward her little visitor. It was an unaccountable feeling, but she enjoyed it. "I'm going to make you some biscuits," she remarked.

"One and—" The child nodded gravely. "Bistits an' dravy," he said angelically. "Miss Smith don't make bistits."

"Miss Smith," echoed Betty, "who is she?"

"One and—" waved his hand, his actions expressing disdain. "Over there."

When the two were in the midst of the very best time in the world somebody outside shrieked "Bob-Bobbe-e-e!" Hearing which "One and—" with one pitiful look at Betty pushed his plate aside and spurring off his elevated perch made for the door.

"Miss Smith," he sobbed; "she's after me."

Betty clutched his apron. "Don't go," she said. "Wait. I'll speak to her."

The door opened a little. "Beg pardon, ma'am," the owner of the voice said indignantly, "you haven't seen a strange little boy about the place have you?" Then, her eye falling on "One and—" "Oh, here he is now. Come with me, you dumb of Satan! You're always running away. I'll tell your uncle, see if I don't."

Acting on an unaccountable impulse, Betty flew to the rescue. "Really, let the child stay with me until we finish our supper," said she. "We were having such a good time. I am quite alone and enjoy having him with me."

"But won't he be a regular bore, ma'am? His uncle won't like him to be in the people's way, he's that pertickler."

"His uncle?" began Betty. "Where is his mother?"

"Oh, she's gone to Hot Springs for her health. She's an invalid, and left this boy with her brother while she is away. We've just moved to Wood End. The uncle is the new Methodist minister assigned to this place. He's a bachelor. I'm Miss Smith, the housekeeper," she stammered.

Betty turned a thoughtful glance at the child. "One and—" she said, gently. "I suspect that you and I may as well finish our tea."

"His name's Bobby," corrected Miss Smith. "He just calls himself One and—, you see his mother always had a class of music scholars. He just took up that 'one and—' racket from hearing 'em count at the piano, one and two and three and—."

Betty was staggered. "But his brothers?"

"Never had any," declared Miss Smith. "But, if I must say it, he's the craziest kid in the world for relations. He's always wantin' brothers. One day some one was tellin' how Adam and Eve was created out'n the dust of the earth, 'n what did this kid do, but take some basins an' fill 'em with dirt 'n set 'em in the sun to bake. One of the neighbors came in and asked the minister what we'd planted in them pans, an' the minister said 'nothin'.' I went out to see about the pans, an' the kid flew around the corner of the house, screamin'. 'Oh, my buvers, my buvers.' An' his ma said she guessed she'd have to 'bout a boy to be a playmate for Bobby—for she couldn't have him doin' things like that—no how."

Miss Smith reluctantly took her place out of the door, and Betty and Bobby took up the supper just where they left off, and continued merrily to the end.

"One and—" fell asleep while he still sat at the table. Betty watched the drooping lids close down over the rosy cheeks. "He is quite like—very like—" Then she burst into tears.

"Never mind, you foolish person," she remarked, anostrophizing her image reflected in the little mirror on the wall opposite. "This is what you've missed. It's too late now." Then she wiped her eyes and laughed a little at her folly. "Let fate do as it will. Everything must be for the best, or it wouldn't be."

"I've come for my little nephew," said a deep voice near the window. "My housekeeper told me I should find him here."

Betty jumped, she was so startled. "You are the new pastor, I understand. Will you come in? The child is here."

He stepped into the little room, quite filling it, he seemed so tall and powerful. "My name is Brinton—John Brinton." He put his visiting card upon the table. "I have but lately come to Wood End." Betty gasped and stared. "John Brinton!" After all these years. Evidently he did not recognize her. Of course it had all happened so long ago, and certainly she was changed. She was eighteen then—she was thirty-eight now and grown much stouter. Besides, men never do remember. Oh, no.

He sat down without waiting for an invitation. "I was glad when the call came for me to come to Wood End," he said, genially. "I had learned that I might find here a friend—once I had known—" he paused, "and loved in my youth."

Betty lost her self-possession. She began to quake. Of course, he didn't know her—he couldn't when she was so changed, so—so fat, oh dear! Just then "One and—" whimpered in his sleep. Betty looked stealthily at him as he lifted his nephew in his arms. Yes, she would have known him anywhere. He was only changed for the better.

"I have never married," he said, "but this is a dear child. In the event of my sister's death I shall adopt him for my very own."

"Yes," said Betty, hardly knowing what she was saying; "he is; I, too, thought—have thought—." She came to a full stop.

The minister had risen and stood looking whimsically in her face. "I don't know exactly how I'm going to say what I have to tell you, but I'm coming back directly to talk over old times, Betty."

"Betty!" She gasped again. "Then you do know me after all. I thought—I thought—"

"Know you?" he ejaculated. "Of course. I thought you did not know me. Now, Betty, say to me, John Brinton, come back, and I'll know."

"No matter what you know," flared Betty. "I'll say John Brinton come back."

And he went back and they were married and lived happily to the end of life.

Not a Professional Prescription

By Will Seaton

BARGE was scared. "I haven't slept any in three nights, doctor," his voice quavered. "When I lie down I have a checked, suffocating feeling, with a pain in my side, and a shivering. Can it be—"

"Let me see your tongue."

Barge opened his mouth. The doctor nodded, held his wrist for some moments and then leaned back in his chair. He looked grave. "You're too young for it, Barge," he said slowly, "not over thirty-five or forty, I think, and endowed by nature with a superb physique. Now, if you were seventy or seventy-five I wouldn't be so much surprised."

"Can't you cure it, doctor—or at least help it some?"

"Perhaps. It depends on how strictly you follow my instructions."

"I'll do just exactly as you say. But what is it?"

"Queer case," mused the doctor, frowning. "Suppose you wait till your next visit for details, when you're improving. But I'll promise a cure if you follow instructions."

"I will," fervently.

"How much are you willing for it to cost?"

"Why, anything, you ask—reasonably."

"Tut tut! I don't mean my fee. That amounts to nothing. But I sometimes send a patient to Europe, or off to sea, or into the woods. It's liable to be expensive. A thousand, or perhaps five thousand."

"Yes, yes. If it'll help me."

The doctor took off his glasses and wiped them thoughtfully, studying the man before him. "Ever hear of the cockles of the heart?"

"Why, yes, as a figure of speech."

"Not so much figure of speech as you think, perhaps. We doctors are all the time finding out greater truths than medicine in curing diseases. Laugh and grow fat. It's scientific wisdom. One man driving his machine or buggy sees a wayfarer on the road and stops to take him in; another never sees him. Everything else equal, the first man is liable to live longer. It has a direct reference to the heart cockles. Barge, you've harmed yours by ignoring them. They're shrunken and withered and ready to fall. And if they do fall your case is hopeless. What you want to do is to soften the cockles, to make them fresh and tender, so far as you can."

"Your case is so—lunny," the doctor continued. "You have given fifteen years of your life, I understand, to money getting, with no thought of yourself or any one except as a means of adding to your hoard. Some people's arteries harden through old age or other causes and they die. Why not the heart dry up through such a life as yours? Take that $5,000 and soften the cockles. Don't sign a single check for charity. Spend it all yourself, a little at a time, every day, half a dozen times a day if you keep your eyes open. Take a wayfarer into your machine for a ride, give a nickel, a few words, a ton of coal anonymously. And keep it up. If you feel worse, come to me. If not, keep away six months, and then come. No," as Barge's hand went toward his pocket, "no free work. Wait till the end of the six months. That's all."

He waited until Barge reached the hall, then said, "Oh, yes, there's one other little thing. A person in your alarming condition should take every precaution, and I want you to follow my direction in this as literally as in the other. Don't bolt your meals in chunks to three or four minutes while looking at your watch; take half an hour, and try to have some cheerful person to talk with, if only a tramp you've asked in. Don't try to do twenty hours' work in a day; ten are enough. And lastly, devote two of the hours stolen from business to walking, preferably with some new object, as making yourself acquainted with all the trees you see, or all the birds, or anything else. That is all."

Barge went out feeling he was the victim of a hoax.

A sudden faintness made everything turn dark for a moment, and he swayed on the sidewalk. Then his eyes cleared and he caught his breath.

"Heaven!" he groaned. "What's money if it kills a man? Five thousand is little enough to pay for life. Of course it's my cockles."

But it was not easy to change the order of his life, even on a doctor's prescription. He walked four blocks without seeing an opportunity where another might have found a dozen. Then he came across a ragged urchin who stood gazing wistfully into a sidewalk showcase.

Mindful of the doctor's order for many and small, he slipped a nickel into the urchin's dirty hand, waited a moment, and saw it promptly expended for a package of cigarettes.

"Failed the very first time," he thought dismally. "Probably that will harden instead of soften."

Mechanically his steps turned a corner and carried him a number of blocks to a street that was lined on both sides by cheap homes of mechanics and other wage laborers. Into this his feet turned, which was natural, for all these houses belonged to him. Then he remembered this was real day, and he had intended to begin collecting after his visit to the doctor. He would do it now.

Again the dizziness oppressed him and brought a thought of the cockles. He stood staring straight ahead for a long time. Several men and women passed him while there, and scowled. Perhaps they remembered it was rent day, too.

At length he went on a few doors and turned into a printing shop where he often went to fix up papers. A dozen placards were ordered, and he waited for them to be printed. Then he went along the street, looking them here and there in prominent places.

Most of the residents seemed to avoid him. But presently a woman slipping by glanced over his shoulder. With a sharp cry to others within hearing she sprang to his side and caught his arm. "Do ye mean that, Mr. Barge?" she choked huskily. "Do ye mean it for honest and true?"

"Why, of course," Barge answered.

"I realize the rent has been excessive, so have cut it in half, dating from the first of the year. So all of you have three months paid in advance."

"Then may the Lord forgive me; bless ye," cried the woman, tears streaming down her face. "I have me rent all ready, but now 'twill let me buy shoes for Norah, whose feet are on the ground, an' a cloak for Katie, who shivers in the wind, an' maybe some coal." The Lord forgive me, for 'tis meeself has called ye a hard man."

"A body never knows," exclaimed another woman, pushing her way among the dozen or more who were now crowding forward. "I ain't got my rent yet by half, and was countin' maybe on a settin' out of other trouble."

Then a big, brawny fellow stopped in front of Barge, and held out his hand. "I've tried to keep myself square with everybody as I went along," he said humbly. "But I fell with you, sir. I've said things against you and incited others. But I'll square it with them. I hope you'll have my hand."

Barge took it with a feeling of embarrassment and unworthiness and then tried to slip away. But the whole street was aroused now and was an ovation and shower of blessings in its end.

By that time Barge's face was red and his hand tingled with more shakings than he believed it had felt before in his life. And inside was a glow that was as pleasant as it was strange. "Dr. Bentley was right," he thought to himself, rubbing his hands together. "It's the cockles of my heart, I'm a lot better already, and it's only been a few days."

The next morning he took his machine over to the street to give some of its invalids a ride.

At the end of six months he went to Dr. Bentley. "I'm married now, sir," he said, after relating his first few weeks' experience. "There was a girl, and we sort of drifted apart after I set myself to money making. I got to thinking about her as married, and maybe her husband needing help. So one day I went out to the little village in my machine, and do you know, sir, a wondering awe in his face, 'she'd been waiting for me all these years—loving me all the time. Now we're married and all my life won't be long enough to make up for that waiting. Over among my tenements they already call her 'Queen of the Street,' she's so good."

After he left the doctor chuckled softly. "Not a professional prescription," he said aloud, "but it worked."

The Great, Far-Reaching Kindness

By Elsie Endicott

LESLIE VAWTER could not reconcile herself to Lawton and she made no pretense of doing so. She hated small towns and Lawton in particular. She told the few people who came to see her that she was homesick and wretched. And she told Tom the same thing until, as he said, "it got on his nerves." Then they began to quarrel.

They had been married three or four years and had always lived in the city. But Tom got a notion that they could get along better in the country. He heard of Lawton, and hunted up a job there. Then he and Leslie moved. There only house they could get was a large one, on King street. The rent was small, but Leslie had taken several loads of furniture more than they had to fill it creditably. All the King street houses were large. There was the only one that did not give an appearance of comfort and means in reserve. Leslie felt that it was her inability to make a good showing that kept people away from her.

"They look down on us, because we can't put up a good appearance," she told Tom. "They are snubbing me and I shan't stand it."

"What will you do?" Tom asked, sighing.

"I'll pay them back. I guess I can be just as hateful and upish as they are. I'll show them I don't care for them or their mean little tricks." Tom sighed again.

She pretended to be looking no hard at a show window that she did not see Mrs. Sweet when they passed on the street. "She knows I couldn't fail to hear her coming a mile off," she said to herself, "with all the noise her taffeta boucans make."

She neglected to return Miss Jessup's call until twice the length of time prescribed by courtesy had elapsed. "I guess they begin to know what I mean," she thought viciously. "I'll have nothing to do with any of them." But solitude did not agree with Leslie. She became morose, touchy. She had, in truth, delivered a boomerang which was most deadly in its recoil. She was having a solitary sundae at Melton's one afternoon when a group of her neighbors entered and took the two tables nearest her. Leslie pretended not to see them, but they were so near she had to hear their chatter. "I was at Julie's house yesterday," Mrs. Sweet said. "And I had such a good time."

"I, too, was there yesterday," cried Mrs. Kellam. "How did it happen I missed you?"

"Oh, I went early so as to avoid the crush," Mrs. Sweet replied. "I always do if I can."

"The last time I was there," said Mrs. Kellam, "Mrs. Van Orden came. She brought Julie some of the most beautiful roses I ever saw."

"Mrs. Van Orden!"

There was a general breathlessness. Leslie felt a thrill of curiosity. She had seen Mrs. Van Orden and the things that pertained unto Mrs. Van Orden—a Daimler limousine, the great stone house on the hill, and servants in buff livery. Who was this Julie that so great a personage as Mrs. Van Orden should call upon her? Some society favorite doubtless who held herself aloof and whom the street felt it was an honor to know, Julie—Julie? To Leslie the name had a vague, familiar ring. When at last they rose to leave Mrs. Kellam suggested that they all go then in a body to Julie's house.

Leslie, with a feeling of being left out of something that seemed to promise much entertainment, added another spite to her little list against her neighbors. "She thought they had all gone, when suddenly Miss Jessup turned straight around and came back to where she was sitting."

"I've never seen you at Julie's house," she said.

Leslie flushed and flung up her head. "I'm sure I don't know what you mean," she said coldly.

Miss Jessup sat down in the opposite chair and looked at Leslie with her practical, rather hard eyes. "But you ought to know by this time," she said. "You've lived here four months, and it doesn't take people long to find out about Julie North. Somebody must have told you."

"If so I've forgotten," Leslie said. "At any rate, I'm sure that no person of that name has ever called upon me."

"If you wait for Julie North to call on you," said Miss Jessup dryly, "you'll wait till kingdom come and after. Julie don't make calls, but she receives them, scores of them. I could tell you all about her, but I shan't. I'm going to take you to see her, and you can find out for yourself," she rose.

"Come on. It's not far."

Somehow Leslie went. They left the Main street and walked a little way up a narrow, dingy side street, thickly set with badly built little houses. And toward a side door of the smallest and most badly built of all Miss Jessup turned.

They entered unannounced into a clean, bare little room. It was empty, but through an open door at the back came a voice—a young, beautifully sweet voice, telling a story—"And I said to Mrs. Van Orden that if she sent me any more cake like that she'd have to pay the doctor bill, because I should certainly eat it and the doctor would be inevitable."

Upon the succeeding ripple of laughter Miss Jessup laid Leslie in. "See here, Julie," she said. "I've brought you a new visitor."

"Oh, good!" cried the sweet voice. "It's pretty crowded in here now, we'll make room for her. Mrs. Kellam, give her your chair, please. There's just room left on the bed for you. How do you do, Miss New-Visitor? You see nobody will tell me your name."

A hand was outstretched—such a smile white, thin hand, so transparent that one could almost see the blood pulse in its blue vein. Leslie stared at the hand and then at the girl it belonged to, and felt tears rushing to her eyes.

She sat against pillows in the middle of the bed—the merest scrap of girlishness which disease had done its worst with. But her face was like a small, faded rose—that would breathe out perfume and show forth color, although it grew on a stunted, crooked stem. She was smiling so gayly that Leslie smiled back. Everybody else in the room was smiling, too, even Mrs. Kellam, who wore glasses.

"My name is Julie. What's yours?" the girl asked.

"Leslie Vawter."

"I like the Leslie part. It suits you, too. So if you don't mind I'll call you by it. Sit down, Leslie. You see, I've got to go right on with my crocheting." She attacked a pink bootie.

They were all laughing when Mrs. Van Orden came in. She had orchids for Julie and a kiss besides. "I couldn't stay away any longer. You did me so much good the other day," she said.

They were all acquainted in no time. No two people could sit in Julie's presence without feeling acquainted and warm hearted and friendly. Only kindness and charity could live where Julie was. And the longer she stayed the more Leslie wondered and learned and believed. She and Miss Jessup were the last to go.

"You'll come again, both of you," Julie pleaded. "I want you, Leslie. We can do each other a lot of good. Bring her, Miss Jessup, please. Bring her often. That will be an excuse for you to come more frequently than you do." She dismissed them with a gay smile.

Walking home Leslie heard Julie's story.

"Born wrong," Miss Jessup said tersely. "But you see what she is and does. God knew what He was about when He put Julie North in the world. Aren't you glad you went?"

"I will go again. And may I go with you?" Leslie asked, eagerly.

That night she told Tom all about it. "No wonder they didn't like me," she said. "They resented my neglecting Julie. There's nothing I believe so far reaching as kindness. Tom, I've never been a very kind person, but I'm going to let Julie teach me. She can."

A Twinkle and an Eye

By Annette Angert

I live on a farm in one of the good old New England states. There are six of us in the family, including mother and dad. I happen to be the youngest member of the flock, and brother Dick—he's the oldest. Two years ago he went to work and got married—lives out West now. I was sorry to have Dick leave home, for he was a mighty nice chap to live with—the kind of a fellow you like to have around. Between Dick and me come the two girls, Constance and Ruth—"roses between thorns," they say. Sometimes I don't pay any attention to this remark, and then again I do! But what's the use—the funny thing about our family is the fact that we don't any of us look like ourselves. We all look like someone else—someone in the family connection I mean. You see mother likes to have it said that we children resemble her—or rather, her people. Dad of course wants a share of the glory, so he insists that we look more like his folks. And there you are!

Mother always told me that I resembled her of Uncle Ned, her favorite brother. Two years ago, however, on my thirteenth birthday (I well remember the day, for it was then I put on the long trousers for the first time), I changed suddenly in appearance. Just like a caterpillar, Mother looked up as I walked proudly into the room that morning and the first thing she said was:

"Why, Stephen Norton, you're the living image of your Great-Uncle Asa!" He's the one that lives down in Texas.

I remonstrated, of course, and insisted that I looked like myself—I was tired of looking like other folks; but she said my chin was just like his, and when I walked—why, it was Uncle Asa right over again!

I was just lighting the lamp in the sitting room when the folks arrived home from town. Dad spoke the picture first thing when they came in.

"Why, Ma," he cried, "look at this will you! Here's our little grandson's photograph!"

Mother got her near-to glasses on, and looked it over carefully. I knew what was coming. Finally she looked up and announced, in most decided tones that the baby was the born image of Dick when he was that age—the same features, exactly! Dad couldn't see it that way. He said the little chap had the Norton eyes all right, but otherwise he looked more like his mother—especially around the mouth.

One of our neighbors came in that evening, and she thought the baby looked like Dad! I can tell you that pleased him mightily.

My, but it was funny to hear them! I just listened and said nothing; but later in my own room I threw myself on the bed, and laughed until my sides ached.

One afternoon, a few days later, dad came home from the postoffice with his hands full of mail—papers, letters, and something else, the sight of which sent a queer little thrill up my spine.

This letter "something" he passed over to mother with the remark:

"Another photograph, from Dick, too. Do you suppose they forgot about sending the other one?"

The cord and wrapping came off in a hurry and then mother exclaimed in astonishment:

"Why, it's a different baby! What does it mean, pa? This certainly came from Dick."

Dad had brought the other picture, and they compared them carefully. The mystery deepened. Wonderingly, Dad turned the picture over that he held in his hand, and the writing across the back caught his eye.

"Why, ma, I know! This is our summer tourists' baby! Don't you remember the young couple that boarded with us two years ago? This must be their little boy."

"You're right, pa," mother agreed, "but how did we ever make such a mistake? Oh, I understand now," she exclaimed a minute later, "Stephen opened that picture before we got home from town the other night. Strange he didn't notice—pa, do you suppose that boy knew all the time, and was laughing?—Stephen! Stephen!"

I was in the kitchen when she called, but suddenly I realized that it was growing late, and the cows ought to be milked, so I took the pail and slipped quietly out the back way. As I closed the door softly behind me I heard dad laugh, that good natured and I knew that everything would be all right. Dad is simply great! He always appreciates a good joke, even if it is at his own expense.

When I came in to supper a little later, the pictures were lying side by side on the sitting room table; Dad was trying his best to look dignified, and mother was very thoughtful, but nothing more was said about the mistake.

That evening before I went to bed, I carried a lighted lamp into the parlor, and got out the old family album. Then I turned the pages until I came to the picture of the relative that for two years I had despised so much. Queer how such things do happen—guess some of my prejudice had slipped away, for somehow he looked entirely different to me, and honestly, I felt ashamed of all the mean things I'd said about him.

I discovered, too, that he had a merry twinkle in his eye, and just as I was closing the book—Why, I could almost swear to it, that he winked at me! Looked enough like it, I know!

Say, but I'd really like to know if there is any family resemblance between me and my Great-Uncle Asa. Guess when I'm through school, I'll take a trip down to Texas, and find out for myself.

ORDERED TO ARREST HEADLIGHT LAW VIOLATORS

Traffic Officers Now to Enforce Law, Effective
Since July 27

District Attorney's Office
Makes Statement of Requirements

Many complaints have been made recently to the police in reference to the violation of the motor vehicle act which relates to having the lights of motor vehicles so regulated that they will not show any direct ray of light more than 42 inches above the road upon which the machine is standing—that is 42 inches above the road 75 feet in front of the vehicle.

The district attorney's office has had the matter brought up repeatedly lately and, the word went forth yesterday that after the additional warning constituted in this article, prosecutions of violators will be in order. Today all traffic officers of the county will be instructed to arrest all violators of the section.

The new section of the motor vehicle act relating to lights became effective July 27, this year. Six weeks have elapsed since the law went into effect, during which time no arrests have been made by the county traffic officers for violators of this section. The traffic officers have purposely refrained from making arrests under the section, to give motorists an opportunity of adjusting their lights to conform to the law.

As there seems to be some uncertainty as to the requirements of the law, Deputy District Attorney Frederick W. Decker has prepared the following statement as a suggestion for the adjustment of lights to conform to the law.

District Attorney's Statement.

"The act reads that the headlight shall be so constructed or arranged that no portion of the beam of reflected light, when measured seventy-five feet or more ahead of said lamp, shall rise or fall above the level surface on which the vehicle stands ahead of such vehicle.

"Provided, further, that the term, 'headlight,' as used herein shall denote any light, irrespective of its location upon the motor vehicle, the rays of which are projected forward.

"To comply with these provisions the light should be so focused that the reflected rays will be condensed into a solid volume as much as possible. To focus the light, place the car in front of a building or an perpendicular flat surface of sufficient size, at a distance of ten to fifteen feet, and, by adjusting the bulb backward or forward, reduce the area of light as much as possible and make the light from both lamps as nearly uniform as possible.

"It will be noticed that the area of light reflected on the perpendicular surface is in the form of a circle and after having this light area, reduced to as small a compass as possible move the machine back to a distance of seventy-five feet from the perpendicular surface; then the lamps should be so adjusted that a line drawn on the perpendicular surface parallel to,

Many attorneys are engaged in the suit. For the plaintiffs there are Harris and Hayburn, of Fresno, and D. W. Brunk of Berkeley.

For the defense there are Brittain & Kunz, also Chickering & Gregory of San Francisco, Short & Sutherland of Fresno appear for the Bowman Drug Company, and its salesman, R. H. Landrum, Arthur H. Barabell, Francisco, representing the Campbell Electric Company, one of the defendants, and the firm which put out the X-ray machine which was to have taken the photograph of Dr. James' stomach after that portion of his body had been made opaque through the action of barium sulphate.

The photograph might show to better advantage the surrounding tissues.

H. D. Horbach and G. Miller, of the Campbell Electric Company did not appear yesterday.

Mrs. James took the stand early in the proceedings. The plaintiffs introduced without any opposition, the fact that when Dr. James died a child of the couple was five days old.

The experts whose testimony yesterday was to the effect that barium carbonate evidently had been given to Dr. James when the case should have had barium sulphate. Doctors C. O. Mitchell, Charles Ingram and F. E. Gwynne, analytical chemist, and Dr. H. S. Duff, with whom Dr. James was associated in business. These men testified to the administration and effect of the two compounds and the different classes of cases upon which they are used in regular medical and chemical practice.

Roeding District Asks for Auxiliary Honors for Effective Work

In several sections of the city yesterday, some feature of the work of the Red Cross was taken up and given the impetus made possible when earnest women undertake to operate along efficient lines.

Out in the Roeding district, the women have become so interested in the work for the soldier boys, and the Fresno chapter work rooms being so far distant, the women of that neighborhood, under the leadership of Mrs. D. Bergeron, are to form an auxiliary. To this end the chapter regulations are to be compiled with and the Bergeron home thrown open for the week of the auxiliary military relief activity.

Knitting clubs of the neighborhood knitting clubs of the Fresno chapter of Red Cross were admitted to the section family that is to be under the general direction of Mrs. J. H. Pierson, as instructor.

At the home of Mrs. H. O. Breeden, 1203 Fresno avenue, organization was effected with Mrs. J. O. Breeden as chairman; Mrs. G. A. Morris, secretary-treasurer. To assist Mrs. Pierson in the instruction work in this class, Mrs. R. N. Davis, Mrs. W. W. Congdon, Mrs. H. T. Wakefield and Miss Jessie Grant were appointed.

In future, the meetings of this club are to be held at the First Christian church, all-day assemblies for each Wednesday.

Still another Wednesday club is to assemble in all-day session at the home of Mrs. L. P. Swift, 1881 M street, organization having been effected yesterday. Mrs. L. P. Swift was chosen chairman and Mrs. George E. Machen, secretary-treasurer.

This afternoon another class is to be formed at the home of Mrs. R. J. Legg, 307 Calhoun street, and to all of these clubs all women interested in the matter of knitting the much-needed garments for the soldier boys are more than welcome. Expert teachers are in attendance, and those who have a will to do can easily master the manipulation of the needles, so declares the general director, Mrs. J. H. Pierson.

Just a Correction.

Yesterday it was announced that German would have a Red Cross auxiliary, organized in Kerman has, for some time had a most efficient auxiliary, an organization that has turned out some of the most effective work of the entire chapter, some of the women are to be commiserated in the fact that a name was misstated in the announcement of new auxiliaries in formation.

The new auxiliary attributed to Kerman is to be formed by the "T. T." club at the Skaggs Bridge district, on the San Joaquin river. The people of this section are desirous of having a part of the work of the Red Cross, and their desire is to be gratified.
